Below these, there are photos of students in costumes, including one in a tiger suit with 'Tiger' written on the chest. A large, stylized letter 'A' is superimposed over the center. To the right, there are photos of students in cheerleader outfits and others in costumes. The bottom section shows a variety of activities: students in formal wear, a group in orange shirts and suspenders, a student taking a photo with a camera, and a group of students in the foreground. A sign that says 'Seniors 02' is visible near the bottom center. The overall theme is a celebration of student life and achievements.

Ask Yourself one thing...

Amazing...simply amazing how good we had it. Anything we could have asked for was at our fingertips. Anything we wanted we had. It was our time to experience everything that LAKE CENTRAL had to offer.

Wow....wow how time flies! How quickly our lives were changing in front of our eyes. No matter WHO we talked to or what activities we were in, everything made a difference. We were involved in a grand quest. A quest every Indian fought; a search for pride, individuality, and accomplishment. Through friendship, learning, and experience, Lake Central enabled completion for our quest.

Life was good. We all experienced high school in a different way, but we all had one thing in common; a flair for life. Students' lives were jam-packed with activities, yet they possessed such energy that no one COULD understand their vigor and enthusiasm. It was that common thread of enthusiasm that kept LC unique and had us striving for the best, for constant success. Whatever it was our Indians attempted, we were on top and achieving our goals.

Teachers did ASK only one thing; to try out best and give it our all. As days passed and time surmounted, maximum work ethic was expected. We always went the extra mile and enjoyed every minute we spent with friends. Life was throwing so much at us, and we never stopped to think FOR a minute what more we wanted from high school life because we knew we had it all.

Our lives were perfect. ANYTHING could have been thrown at us, and it would not have changed a thing. There was that energy and idealistic hope for perfection that we proved throughout the year.

MORE than ever before, Lake Central Indians 2001-2002 had their time to shine and prove that they were never less, but always more. We were the best we could possibly be...

What more could you want from Life ?

Life is composed of so many risks, too many decisions, and various changes. These four years were the most important and defining years of our lives. We had finally gained the freedom that we always wanted, but the responsibilities we could have done without. Somewhere between the homework, parties, crushes, tears, and friendships, we found ourselves and accepted those qualities we once feared. LC opened our minds and allowed us to discover these characteristics. We used them to our benefit during our high school years and throughout life.

In life, we come to realize that we cannot "sweat the small stuff." Too many people allow the unimportant barriers to stop them from reaching their goals. Life is filled with opportunity, and within these four years, LC has offered millions to each seeking individual. It was our responsibility to capture each opportunity with full intent on making the situation go our way. We made new friends that will last a lifetime. We learned unforgettable lessons with each new experience. Finally, we created everlasting memories that will bring laughter and tears as the years pass us by. LC gave us a home to take these risks and learn what life is really about.

Crazy As Can Be

Students let loose during school hours

"You sleep in that?" followed by lots of pointing and giggling filled the hallways early on Monday of Spirit Week. Pajama Day offered the most comfort of the week, but students couldn't help but question whether these pajamas were a special purchase. "Pajama Day was my favorite day because it was Monday, and it felt like an extended weekend," said junior Kristy Rey. "I was so comfortable at school!"

On Tuesday the students dressed patriotically for Red-White-Blue Day to commemorate the September 11 attack. Wednesday proved to be the most colorful as Hawaiian Day with students walking around wearing floral prints. An overabundance of leis, purchased at lunch to benefit the American Red Cross, added to the color.

Thursday definitely brought the most embarrassment when only the bravest students dressed up. Decade Day had students dressed up with disco wear, poodle skirts, tight-rolled jeans, and crimped hair. Junior Jeanna Thomas said, "I love Spirit Week, so I can watch everyone trying to get laughs with their crazy outfits!"

The most spirited day was Friday, when everyone wore their LC activities outfits or just dressed head to toe in blue and white. Cheerleaders were extra spirited, while teachers and administration supported the football team with the school colors. Students wrote on their faces, sprayed their hair blue and white, and wore all the spirit wear they could get their hands on.

Students walked through the hallways showing a definite individuality that helped support LC. Spirit Week gave students a chance to show off how creative they could be, whether it was wearing a grass skirt or an American flag shirt.

A pie-eating contest and tug of war were fun for all. The pie-eating contest ended up turning into a food fight, while the tug of war ended with all the kids being winners. "It was our most successful one yet," said senior Stacie Pluskota, Student Council President. "The rally went really well."

Many students entered the parking lot early in order to fire up the grills and start cooking for the tailgating rituals. Tables and chairs were set up around the grills so students could hang out and eat. After eating the students filed into the burial grounds to show their school spirit.

Indians gain roaring victory over Leo

Homecoming was the most anticipated game of the season. It was the game that all the football players, students, and faculty looked forward to; it meant the most to LC. This year LC had the chance to show off their true skill to Chicago Leo. Students lined up outside the gates to cheer our team on to victory. A victory it was, too, with LC pulling through to win the game 24-12.

Students and fans had the opportunity to purchase flags in honor of the September 11th tragedy. "This game was amazing because everyone showed their patriotism by buying flags and singing the National Anthem," said Nadine Bruns (11). The National Anthem was sung at the game to show support to America and all those who had lost their lives.

More than other years an overabundance of fans that came out to support the team. "I loved being at this game because there was so many people who painted their faces and cheered the team to victory!" remembered Jenny Klemme (11). This game was also a first for some players who showed their true talent in the midst of all those fans. "This was the only game I actually went to and I'm glad I went because it was awesome. Mike Beavers even scored a touchdown. When Mike cried, I cried, we cried together," said Tony Macak (12). Homecoming gave the players and students the chance to defend their school, proving they were the best.

Senior running back Chris 'Hank' Ogden uses his aggression to dominate Leo's defense as he attempts to lead the Indians to Homecoming victory.

Emily Sasaki maintains her high level of excitement as she cheers alongside her fellow Indians to pep up the student stands in the final moments of the game.

New DJ makes for magical evening

Homecoming proved a huge success; the theme "Paradise Island" transported LC into an exotic fantasy island. After an entire week of preparation and anticipation, the dance took place on Saturday, September 29, at 6:30. Student Council decorated the gym with beach scenes, palm trees, and hibiscus flowers. "I really loved the decorations make the gym feel less spacious," said chairperson, junior Megan Skopelja. "Yeah!" and he letting loose all floor. Excitement the air. Student Stacie Pluskota said, "I was really happy he played music all the and it looked like contrast to previous lighting or music problems to spoil the fun or stop the dancing. "The dance was definitely awesome this year, and it was a great last homecoming," said senior Nathan Ott. "It was the best in four whole years." Student Council, once again, created a flawless night that LC will remember forever. It was a true paradise.

"Take out some paper," the teacher says. Her voice trembles, as do her hands. "Share your thoughts. What went through your mind when you heard?"

"I had never seen the towers," a freshman writes. "Now I won't get to."

"Will we go to war?" a senior boy asks aloud.

"Oh, we are at war," the teacher answers.

Somehow we know that morning that our lives are forever changed. We know something horrible is amiss. Our teachers scramble from room to room, horrified expressions on their wide-eyed faces. "There must be a Columbine situation," a student dares to whisper to his friend.

"No," she corrects him, "there would have to be a code red."

"But we're testing," he reminds her. "Maybe they are waiting to sound the code red until we finish these dumb tests."

At lunch we begin to hear. The facts are scattered. We cannot believe what we are learning. A plane has struck the World Trade Center. And then a second. Another has hit the Pentagon. America is under attack. We gather throughout the building in afternoon classes. Our teachers stand staring at CNN. We watch it over and over again. We learn of a plane crash in Pennsylvania; we are told the Americans abroad are heroes because they refuse to allow this fourth plane to take further innocent lives.

For the first time in our lives, our skies are bare. For eight days we see no planes. This has never happened. Our families huddle around their televisions, too. We try to attend to the mundane parts of our lives, but our hearts are aching. Our President tells us to carry on with our lives. And gradually we do. But it is not the same. We are alert; we are no longer naive. And we look among our friends and mentally calculate which of them will be most affected.

A Night On The Town

Students Make Formal A Night To Remember

The dress, the date, and the plans for after were what students set out to perfect for Winter Formal. Planning started months before to make sure everything would be just right for that special night.

They arrived at the Schererville Villa Caesar with an array of colors, flowers, and automobiles. Many students made sure they were on time to get in line for pictures. "I wanted to get in line right away, so I would not be sweaty in my picture," said senior Rachel Tudor.

Sponsored by N-Teens, the club sold a grand total of 362 tickets. The dance floor was filled with sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Freshmen were not allowed to attend unless asked by an upperclassman. "This year's formal was a big success," said N-Teen member Amy Hand. "Everyone pulled together to get things done."

Together the N-Teen members came up with the theme of "A Night on the Town" making a beautiful setting for the court. The candidates for Formal Queen were Gwen Hochman, Megan Kirschner, and Lauren Sanchez. Sanchez was crowned Queen of Winter Formal. "I was very excited when I was crowned because all my friends were cheering my name," said Sanchez. The format for choosing the queen was different from previous years. Senior SRT teachers were asked to nominate one young woman who exemplified both scholarship and service. From there, the N-Teen officers narrowed that down to three girls for the dance. Megan Kuhn was the junior princess and Salina Hernandez was the sophomore princess.

After the long night of dancing, students left and headed to Chicago or back to a friends to eat. The Cheesecake Factory and Italian Village are two popular places students head to. Other students tend to stick around the Tri-Town area to eat. House of Kobe and Giovanni's were on the top of that list.

With Winter Formal such a success, the "Night On The Town" was a night to remember for all.

Juniors Ashlee Ninkovich, Pam Guzik, and Geoff Walker rest while they wait for the music to start playing again.

Ryan Soto (11) leads a slow dance with his date as the night begins to wind down. The much anticipated evening is about to end.

The Formal court nominees were Megan Kuhn, Megan Kirschner, Lauren Sanchez, Gwen Hochman, and Salina Hernandez.

Sophomores Kelli Koch, Diana Kalembe, Rachel Komar, and Nicole Schutz pose with their garters.

Couples were provided with the option of remembering the night with professional photos from Spasoff.

Bill Donovan (12), Eric Creasbaum (12), and Nick Poteres (11) display their garters before they leave for the dance.

The students of LC throw their hands in the air to the song "Lady Marmalade" while they sing loudly.

Juniors Kristin Venturelli and Matt Vuckov grind to the DJ's hopping beats.

Juniors Tricia Drewinski and Katie Farrer are ready for the gala to begin.

A sea of faces surrounds Meghan Werner, Dustin Gorelick, Katie Gaskins, Josh Morgan, Jeanna Thomas, and Emily Keilman as they refuse to lose even a minute of the evening's dancing opportunities.

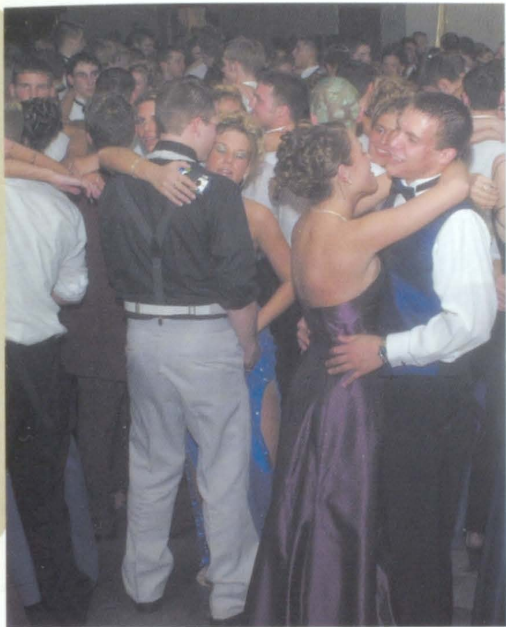

Details taken care of, senior friends Taylor Garrison, Nick Poteres, Eric Creasbaum, Katie Jacewicz, Mandy Hackman and Bill Donovan appear ready to leave at last.

Seniors Jenny Guillen and Michelle Mittler compare hair styles and gowns chosen especially for the evening.

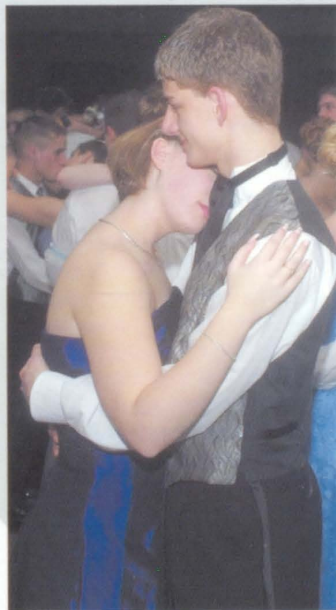

Out on the dance floor all night long, seniors Drew Dziegłowicz and Staci Halupniczak share the space with their special friends.

Everyone scrambles for a spot as the music begins to wind down. Senior Marie Nelson and junior Jerry Jordan can only wonder that the evening has passed so quickly.

Driving for Donations

Students give back to the community

LC students eagerly lent a helping hand to the needy in the community through the Food Drive, Toy Drive, and Blood Drive. Their enthusiasm and generosity brought happiness to the needy as well as to themselves. The responsibility and organization of the sponsors and students successfully allowed them to make a true difference in our community.

The Food Drive, headed by Mr. Tom Clark, Interact sponsor, encouraged students to bring in money, canned food, ham, and turkeys to brighten the Thanksgiving spirit and give to the needy. Having raised 52,000 cans for the food drive concluded on Thanksgiving Day, many students spent their Thanksgiving mornings at soup kitchens or personally took food to homes, providing joy to the less fortunate.

The Toy Drive ran during the Christmas season just before Christmas break. It was headed by Ms. Jennifer Arzola and Ms. Leslie Lattiere, the Student Council sponsors. About 25 SRT's brought toys for the child they sponsored. The students who participated felt delighted with their accomplishments, and many children joyfully celebrated a Christmas they could always remember.

The Blood Drive took place in February during school hours. Appointments began with the school day and continued through 12:45 p.m. to allow everyone to finish by the time the final bell rang. Administered by the Heartland Blood Center and sponsored by Ms. Kathy Ignas, the Blood Drive benefited many people. They collected about 100 units of blood. Ms. Ignas expressed the following, "I would like to thank all those who donated their blood and those who donated their time to help make the blood drive a success. Many lives are saved because of the student and staff generosity."

Family Values

Siblings spend quality time together at school

As she fought her way through E-hall, a sister walked by, and as she passed her younger brother, she tried to decide if she should acknowledge him or act as if he didn't even exist. She took the considerate route: gave a little smile, maybe a wave, and quickly walked away.

We would see our siblings at home all of the time, which was difficult to handle, but seeing them at school too was just an impossible task. School was supposed to be the time when we got away from family life, the time when we could just forget about everything at home. WHO wanted a brother or sister at school with them?

"She's fun to be around and I like getting a ride from her," said freshman Christina Pluskota about her sister, senior Stacie Pluskota.

Junior Yvette Tovar gives her brother, Manny, a shove to help him down the stairs. "He gives me gas money, so I don't mind driving him to school," said Tovar.

"I think Dominic is smarter, and we have a lot of the same teachers, so he helps me out a lot," said Vinny Petrozza.

"When we see each other in the hall, we pretend that we don't know each other," said sophomore Mike Gallagher.

"It's fun going to the same school. If I ever need help or need to talk about something, then I have someone to talk to," said junior Jack Goldsberry, on sister, junior Melissa Goldsberry.

Senior Ryan Buchler said, "It's nice going to the same school as Aaron. We're both in varsity sports, so it's nice being able to talk to someone after a tough loss."

Senior Ashley and sophomore Kara Geideman dance together at Winter Formal. "I get along with my sister, so long as she doesn't take my clothes without asking me first," said Ashley Geideman.

"I don't mind having my brother here. I think he looks up to me and now knows that I'm so much smarter," said senior Amanda Wayne.

"I like waiting for the school day to end so that we can go ride our dirt bikes," said junior Tony Vescovi.

The best thing about having a sibling here with me is...

"I like embarrassing her by yelling stuff down the hall," said senior Jenni Soranno.

"I like bumping into them sometimes, it's weird seeing her here," said Nicole Garza.

"It was easy to find my way around because she showed me where everything was," said freshman Kristen Castor.

I Could Not Ask For More

Junior Class Makes Prom A Success

The arrival of cars, limos, and buses to the Serbian Center in Lansing signified the beginning of Prom. The sun was shining and everyone was looking his or her best. Girls spent many hours searching for the perfect dress and hairstyle. Guys picked out their tuxes and bow ties to match their date's dress. Picking out the perfect flowers was the next task that challenged students. However, when everyone arrived, the hours of preparation were well worth it.

As students entered the building, there was a race to the picture line to make sure they got it before everyone else. Many students spent a good amount of time waiting in line for pictures. "I think I waited an hour for pictures," said senior Jillian Lessard.

Junior Class Cabinet, who was also the sponsor, picked the theme, "I Could Not Ask For More." The colors consisted of pink, periwinkle, and silver. Music was provided by Yeah! D.J. Service and pictures were by Spasoff.

As the dance kicked off, there was the crowning of Junior Prince and Princess and Senior King and Queen. Junior Class Cabinet President, Samantha DeKruiff proudly crowned Jose Mendez and Pam Guzik Junior Prince and Princess. She also crowned Aamir Bharmal and Amanda Willet as Senior King and Queen. The court danced to "I Could Not Ask For More" by Edwin McCain. The rest of the night was spent dancing with dates and friends. "I had a lot of fun with everyone," said junior Aaron Crawford.

When the clock chimed 11 p.m. and the dance floor cleared, students headed for the doors. They received a picture frame as a parting gift on behalf of the Junior Class. With Prom ending in success, everyone would cherish the memories they made.

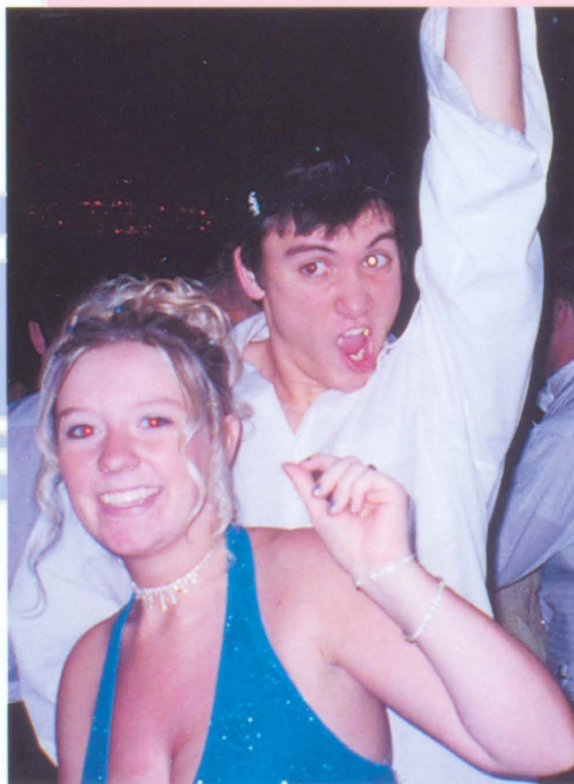

Adrian Sickles and friends meet at her house for pictures before their departure on the bus from LC.

Senior Rachel Tudor and friends find a more convenient method for the bus to pick them up. Their group decided to meet at the St. John Township Community Center to utilize the beautiful gazebo.

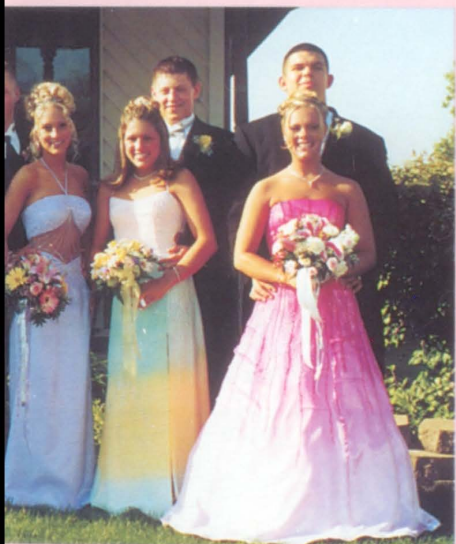

Seniors Adam Skrabak, Frank Krzus, and Jason Parise demand a picture to show everyone what a fun time they had at the Prom.

Senior Mike Beavers and friends ditch their dates and head to find refreshments. DJ Yeah provided four intense hours of music for the students.

Senior Tony Macak shows his enthusiasm for Prom as he anxiously awaits for his date to board the limo bus.

Seniors Dan Tomaszewski, Adam Kwolek, and friends have a moment with the boys while their dates are nowhere to be found.

Adam Langel (12) and date pause from slow dancing to capture a memory. Slow dances give couples a chance to dance with everyone.

Adam Buchta (12) and Kristen Detmar (12) dance to "Staying Alive" while they imitate moves from the seventies. The DJ played a variety of songs from different decades.

Senior Dan Tomaszewski strikes his Spiderman pose while trying to reel in a date to dance with. He impressed many ladies with his dancing skills.

Stacie Pluskota (12), Ed Bloom (12), and group smile from down below as they wait for their limo to arrive. Many groups travel together in large groups to Prom.

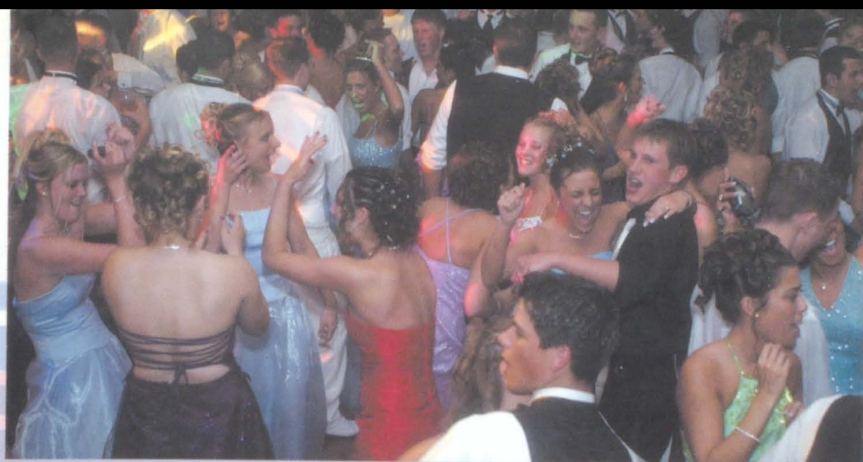

Dan Cardenas (12) and friends let loose in the limo after the dance. Some students tend to go all out and rent Navigator limos to go to Prom.

Senior Melissa Hayden desperately tries to get her date's bow tie off her neck. Dates usually exchange garters and bow ties.

Nikki Corle (11) and Nikki Schnoor (11) try to stay in front of the camera while enjoying the night. Throughout the night friends tend to gather to dance in large groups.

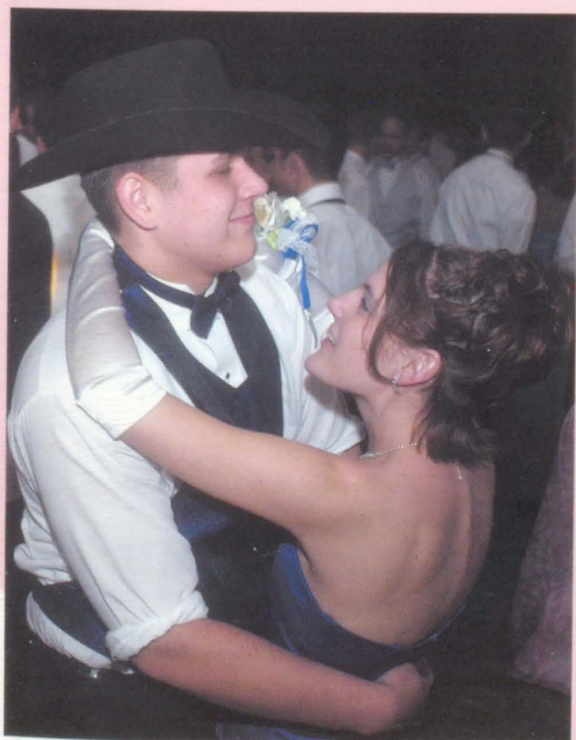

Students throw their hands up in the air and dance as if no one is watching. Prom is a time where students can let loose and relax.

Seniors Nicole Warren and Katie Ziemkiewicz give Frank Keros a big smooch after he danced with them.

Megan Skopelja (11) and Mallory Bryant (11) prepare for the DJ to begin as they wait with their dates.

Eric Sutsh (12) and date look into each other's eyes while they dance to a slow song.

How much time did you spend getting ready for the big night?

"It didn't take me that long, just about two hours," junior Jackie Young

"It took me five hours to get ready...is that too long?" sophomore Jacquelyn Moredich

"Um...twenty minutes. All I have to do is put on a tux!" - senior Bob Mellas
"About 2 hours, because I had to get my hair done and put my makeup on," senior Nikki Risch

Typically ...

a girl spent $250 on her dress

a couple spent $60 for flowers

a couple spent from $17 for coach or $40 per limo guys shelled out about $120 for tux rental photo packages asked for another $35 per couple dinner afterwards cost $20-$30 per person camping or post-prom activities could add another $20 per person

... so was it worth it?

The Weekend After...

Despite the rain, students still had fun

After the glitter was washed off and pictures were taken; after you danced the last dance with that special someone, you finally went to sleep after feeling like you had been up for days. The next thing you knew the alarm clock was going off incredibly early for a Saturday morning and prom weekend began. The unseasonably cold weather did not break the spirits or plans, as the students pressed on to their mini-vacation spots.

Despite the rain, Lake Monroe was definitely the hot spot to camp. "The A-frame house was like a scene out of Animal House, and the fact that there were a ton of LC people there made the weekend complete," said senior Mike Hodges. In fact, the A-frame house was the place to hang out for all of the campers when no one was playing mud football, fishing, or dancing in the rain. "We rocked the night away in our A-frame mansion with our friends and the cockroaches," said senior Jenny Baker.

Other groups retreated to drier places for the weekend. "My group spent two nights at a hotel in Chicago, and we got to go to the House of Blues one night and see a jazz band play," said senior Nikki Risch. Risch's group was not the only group avoiding the rain in a hotel. "We went to the Radisson Inn in Lafayette Saturday night, partied hard, and hung out by the pool out of the rain," said senior Drew Crague.

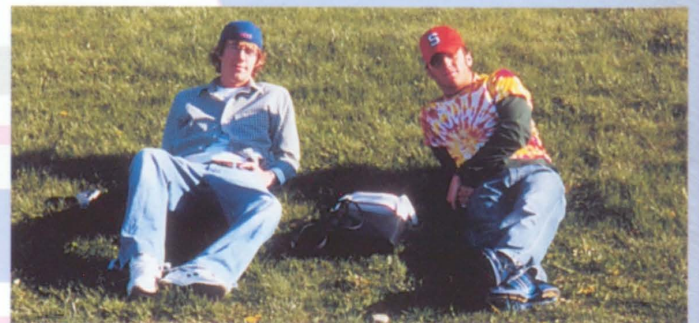

Some groups also had a tough time on the road between getting lost and well, dropping a few things during a pit stop. "On the way to Hidden Paradise the rear hatch of our van flew open and all our luggage and food flew out all over the highway, so we had to pull over and pick it up, but once we got there we had an awesome time," said junior Megan Skopelja.

No matter where students were or how the weather was, everyone still managed to have fun. Students stayed up until all hours of the night and hung out with best friends for the last major event of the year. # Whether an athlete or fan, students enjoyed LE Sports

What else could we have wanted from our athletic teams? The athletes woke up for morning practices, pushing themselves to give their full effort. After school they quickly ate chips from the vending machines and started a grueling practice. They never relented during the games, proving who had the most determination. Upperclassmen provided leadership to the younger, inexperienced players; they showed them how winning the game can come naturally.

Playing on the freshmen and JV teams brought the athletes together over time, and only those who truly loved the game continued to play. Teammates showed full support for one another, bonding at pasta parties the night before the big game against Merrillville and on two and a half hour road trips to Indianapolis. They shared pain, sweat, wins, and losses. In return they asked only for dedication from teammates and coaches.

Superfans dug up all the spirit they could find and let their teams know that they were there for them. They decorated faces, wore everything blue and white, and chanted for their favorite players.

Tailgating in the parking lot and waiting for the players at school after they arrived home on the bus were only a part of what made sports so fun for every student.

Whether hitting a homerun, pinning the opponent, or scoring the winning goal, the Indians were tough and settled for nothing less than perfection. They left nothing more for fans to desire and filled their own hearts with memories.

What it takes to be an athlete

Whether it was waking up at 4:30 in the morning or staying at school until 6:30 at night, LC athletes did it all. These amazing athletes balanced the pressures of schoolwork, practice, family, and friends and still excelled at one of the things they did best. "Being involved in sports and working has taught me to manage my time wisely and set aside time for family, friends, and school work," said senior Andrea LaBanco.

Countless hours of pushing their bodies to the max and then stretching it all out quickly became an everyday routine that they couldn't imagine living without. Amazing as it was, what other LC students may have seen as torture became what made athletes special.

Soon we began to feel the triumph as we defeated our opponents and became the champions that we were striving to be. We made new traditions out of our pre-game rituals with shaving our heads and bleaching our hair every color under the sun to show our spirit and determination. "Dying our hair is partly tradition and partly to show we're just out to have a good time," said senior Joe Boney. These symbols and accomplishments are what made other teams feel the intimidation of the Indians.

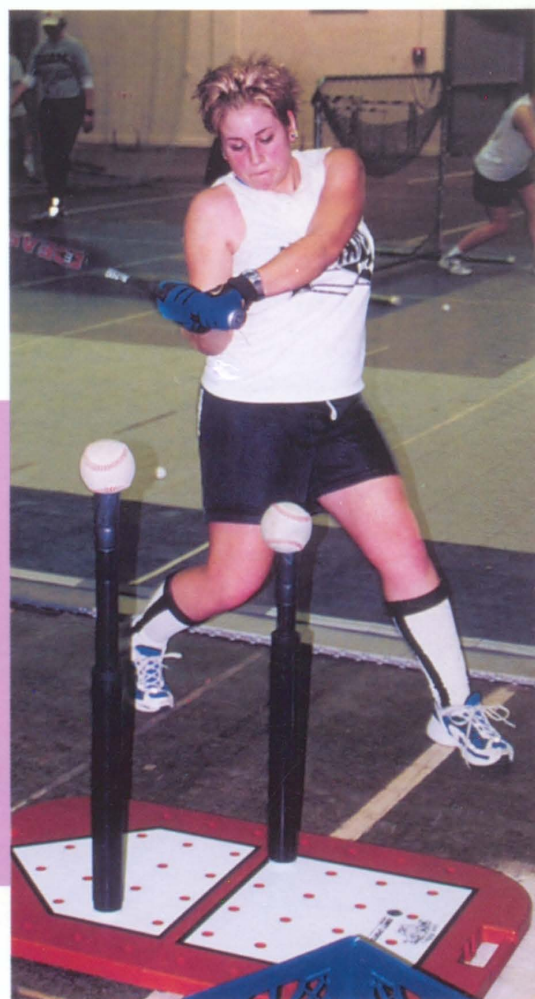

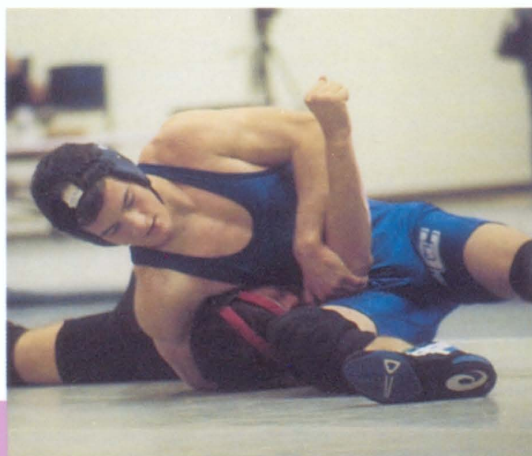

When all other students went home on a Friday after school and napped before going to the big game, the athletes rushed home to eat, went back to school, and played with all their hearts for their screaming fans. "It was hard to stay focused during school when I had a game that night and all my friends were planning what they were going to do that night," said junior Josh Morgan.

With this bond of the love for the game, teammates who you didn't know at the beginning of the season quickly became your best friend with each road trip. "I met my best friend when we were six years old and would watch our older siblings practice and compete, and we still swim together today," said junior Lindsay Frost. As the seasons wore on and quickly ended, we discovered that we were talented and always will be as we continued to play on and prove ourselves to truly be awesome.

Long hours of practice helped senior Adam Kwolek successfully pin down his opponent at the Harvest Classic wrestling meet.

Westlake Program

lending a helping hand...

From sporting events to craft fairs, the Westlake Program offered a variety of events to keep the year's pace moving at a clip.

Ms. Chris Barajas, new physical education teacher for the Westlake program, kept kids engaged and captivated by planning games such as basketball, volleyball, and kickball. Students involved in the Westlake sports program competed as the Patriots. During the season the Patriots competed in at least six basketball games against teams from Lowell and Valparaiso. They wrapped up their season with a victory over the parents in the annual Parents vs. the Patriots game. This favorite event offered just as much excitement as any game with their peers, as the Patriots planned ahead for their win.

Along with competing in sports events through the year, Ms. Debbie Stack taught the Westlake students arts and crafts skills. They completed a number of projects; hand-painted antique chairs were popular and sought after by everyone. Peer model, senior Jenny Clark, said, "I think this project is a phenomenal thing to be a part of. The furniture turned out so adorable that I wish I had a piece in my room." Westlake students raffled off their art work at school and at the LC craft fair. The students raised money for the Special Needs Fund and the American Cancer Society, setting the example that everyone could and should help.

By Becky Nelson

The girls golf team always approached the season in a big way and made it a point to be noticed. It mattered not if their recognition was based on abilities and talent or spirit and enthusiasm. Seniors Becky Nelson, Samantha Thegze, and Caitlin Lawes led the 12-member squad to a record of 10-5 while also attaining notable finishes at the tournaments. In early August, when their season took shape, the Indians captured the first annual Lake Central Invitational title. However, the win made them hungry for more so they placed in a tie for second at the Michigan City Marquette Invite among top teams.

Heading into the Sectional with high hopes, the girls learned how to take the bad with the good. On that day, the tears of defeat overwhelmed all laughs of victory as the team finished fourth, missing the Regional by a mere seven strokes. Some good results came from that day, though, because Nelson and Lawes individually advanced after shooting 84 and 93, respectively. Lawes later ended her season and career at Regionals determined to make state appearance. The first girl from qualify for the tournament at the

She shot a two-day total of 160, good enough for fourteenth place and an All-State Honors.

Because of Nelson's post-season highlights and two medallist honors at the Rennsalaer and Marquette Invites, she was named MVP. Lawes received the Sportsmanship award for always keeping the team and even opponents smiling and in good spirits. Junior Katie Farrer earned the award of Most-Improved by shaving off the most strokes from the previous year which is vital for the team's continual success. Farrer, along with sophomores Kim Skiff and Brit Bushong, will have big shoes to fill next year. When questioned about the season, Coach Doug Johnson responded, "It was one where there was a wide gap between our best team scores and our worst team scores, but the good days far outweighed the bad ones."

Thegze agreed when reflecting on her high school golfing career, "It was a good four years; I'm sad it had to come to an end."

Every year the most talented sophomore, junior, and senior football players join together to form the LC varsity football team. They all go out on the field as the most experienced tight-knit group of players to try to achieve the goal of winning the game for LC. This proved to be a rather tough year with losing some of the team's best players last year and having quite a young team to work with.

Yet the team had a successful season, winning six games out of 11. Offensive lineman Kevin Paetsch (11) said, "Huntington North was our best game because we dominated the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball. It turned our season around!"

The team had some ups and downs that proved they could pull through and make it happen. "We pulled ourselves together toward the end of the season and got a rhythm going," said Paetsch. Their record took them all the way to sectionals. The varsity football team was placed in a 5A sectional match against EC Central winning the game with a 26 to 0 final score. That win moved the team up to play Valparaiso; Valpo put up a hard fight for the team with a tough loss of 6 to 17. That loss took the team out of the sectionals ending their season.

New Year, New Opportunity

Keeping in mind that this past year was a first for some players to be on the team, they showed the team, the coaches, and most importantly themselves that they were varsity material. Many junior-varsity players looked up to the varsity team for inspiration and motivation. Junior Justin Riordan played on the JV team this year. He expected to play on varsity next year and hoped to follow in their footsteps. "I look up to Chris Ogden because he plays well, with a good attitude on and off the field. He shows a good attitude toward the whole team. He gives everyone motivation to do his best." Losses were hard but the team also was able to break through and get LC some wins that proved they were becoming a whole. LC football continues to prove to be one of the strong parts of athletics representing LC.

The JV season started the week before the beginning of school, with a game at Merrillville. It was close, but they won after a hard game. After that JV went on a roll. LC won the next three games, beating Portage, Calumet, and Munster. However, the Portage game had most of its second half rained out. The next week the game against Penn was rained out before LC could hit the road. The next Monday, JV beat Kankakee Valley in a freezing rain. Then there was a by week, followed by victories over Morton and St. Joe.

Hard work and dedication to team spirit yield big payoff

The defense was lead by inside linebacker Demetri Doukas (10), who was the team's best run stopper. The defensive backs took care of the other teams' passing game, and the line applied constant pressure on the quarterbacks of the opposing teams.

The offense was led by quarterbacks Ron Jankovich (11) and Dale Murzyn (10). Jankovich, who was later moved up to varsity, would hold the ball until the receivers were most open, even with linebackers and linemen coming at him. Murzyn would put his shoulder down and run the ball, or block for a running back. The team also had a number of excellent wide receivers, running backs, and linemen.

The freshmen A team started with Merrillville. They played a hard game but only got the tie. After that the team took off. They beat out Portage, then they took on and beat Munster. The team then had a by week, followed by a victories over East Chicago and Hammond Clark. After another bi-week, the A team finished off their season by beating Wirt.

The freshman B team played hard, but couldn't match the success of its fellow teams. With four rainouts, the B team only played four games in the season. They played Munster twice, walking away with a win and a loss. They also played South Bend St. Joe and Bremen, losing to both.

During the regular season LC varsity Indians only lost two games, one to Portage 2-3 and the other to Carmel 1-3. Even though they lost to Carmel, the number one team in the state, LC could celebrate because senior Lauren Petralia scored a goal for the Indians, becoming the only team to score on Carmel during the regular season.

"My favorite game of the season is when we played Andean," said sophomore Jessica Largent. This is a game that all the girls look forward to. "They think they are so much better than we are, even though we have beaten them the past two or three years. So it is definitely a lot of fun to go out there and win." LC sure did show Andean who is better by winning the game 4-1.

Winning varsity soccer team takes season to its limits

In sectionals, LC defeated Merrillville 5-1 and Andean 5-4 in a shootout. The Indians won the championship sectional game against Highland 2-0. LC was victorious again when they played Munster in the regional game and beat them 5-0.

With a record of 16-3-2 the girls varsity soccer team made it all the way to the semi-state championship game. Beating Chesterton, the team's rival, 1-0 during the regular season, the girls were hopeful to do it again in the semi-state playoffs, but they fell just short with a 0-1 loss. "The girls worked really hard this year with conditioning to prepare for this season. We had nine seniors on the team, of which seven were starters who played most of the minutes in the match. These seniors formed a solid foundation that was a force to be reckoned with. This was a great group of girls that will be missed and hard to replace," said Coach Richard Moore.

The MVP's were very hard to decide this year since the team was full of so much talent. Senior Julie Herbst was honored with the Offensive MVP, senior Amanda Willet, took the Defensive MVP. The all-around team MVP went to senior defender Shannon Holly. These honored players contributed to the season by helping the team succeed all the way to the semi-state finals. This team was full of seniors and their shoes will be hard to fill. Coach Moore said, "This was a great group of girls that will be missed by many and will be hard to replace."

With a team full of talented players, being a stand-out can sometimes be a difficult task. Seniors Ashley Pluskis and Lauren Petralia performed their duties as defenders every single game. Both girls played outside defense and were both talented players. Both girls have been playing since they were little and they both have played for advanced traveling teams on the offseason. "I think our defense was so solid because we have played together on this team for four long years," said Petralia. Pluskis said, "I wish we could have gone farther, it was a hard way to go out. Plus, we know who did all the work on defense anyways."

New coach, new season-- soccer sees new beginnings

A sport of skill, endurance, and cooperation: a love of the girls junior varsity team, soccer grew in the hearts of many LC players and fans throughout the year. Their season began a little shaky. After a tough loss against Center Grove, the fourth game of the season, the captains gathered everyone together, and they talked out their problems. Sophomore Katie Herman talks about the loss, "We fell apart at Center Grove, but it made us work together better in the end." From that point on they functioned as a true team.

Although the team consisted primarily of sophomores the four freshmen fit in well and a tight bond was formed during the year. Pasta parties held by seniors united the JV team even more and gave them an opportunity to become friends with the varsity players. Sophomore Jessie Largent stated, "Varsity girls were very supportive and really cared about us." JV players appreciated the varsity girls' leadership and learned from them to lead each other to wins.

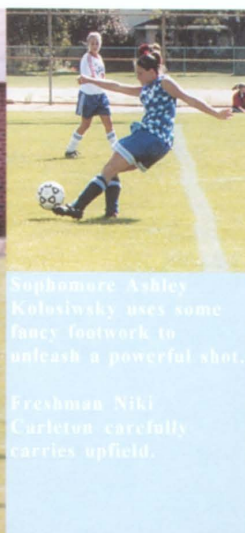

Practices strengthened their bodies and minds. They prepared for games, perfecting needed skills and improving their physical endurance. They learned to function as one instead of as many individuals. It was more than just work though. They grew friendships as well as respect for one another.

Their new coach, Ms. Julie Moore, added to the fun and success of the season. Her inspirational attitude and easygoing spirit motivated the team to set high standards. The realization of their goals was apparent with their improved record: ss 8 wins, 5 losses, and 3 ties. Coach Moore, the head coach, shows her pride, "This was a great group of girls to work with. They were always willing to give 100 percent and are ready for varsity play next year."

Without a doubt, strong senior leadership and teamwork led the Indians to an 11-4-1 record during their tough scheduled season. The Indians wanted to show redemption and come back after a tough 0-5 start in last year's season. After a tough home opening loss to Valparaiso the Indians then won their next three and tied a game to make a strong showing for themselves.

After a few early losses in the season, they struck back hard with a 14-0 win over KV. Senior Chad Blevens made his comeback felt as he added four goals after a 2-game suspension. With Blevens back, the team felt strong and finished the rest of the season with a 7-2 record. During this last stretch of the season, sophomore keeper, Andrew Lawrence, was very solid. He allowed only one and two goals in each of the wins and also added in two shutouts against Lafayette Harrison and Wheeler. This upped his season shutouts to a total of four, this accomplishment is excellent for a young sophomore.

Confidence and leadership can only take a team so far

The Indians now headed into the Merrillville Sectionals with high hopes. The first game brought a strong performance by the Indians as they took Hobart 2-1. The next game, against Merrillville, was a rematch of maybe the Indians toughest game during the regular season. Despite a 2-1 win over Merrillville during the season, the Indians were unlucky in this one and lost 2-3 in a hard fought sectional semi-final. The Indians were stunned and realized their season had concluded as Merrillville had knocked them out of sectionals now for the second year in a row.

The great run was now over for all the seniors, while the underclassmen still have upcoming years to think about. It was a disappointing end for one of the most talented teams that played at LC. The annual soccer banquet was a time for all the players to finally relax and look back at their season. This celebration only created more surprises for the team. Nick Summa took the Offensive MVP, while Randy Haines brought in the Defensive MVP. Blevens won the 110 Percent award for the second straight year. "I feel they should name the award after me," Blevens replied. Sophomore Chris Jutkus won the team's all-around MVP. The boys' soccer season left many memories for all the players. Whether their memories involved displaying great skill on the soccer field or just enjoying moments together off the field, the team would remember this season for years to come.

Leading the Way

For a team to be successful there had to be some type of leadership. One must remember that being a leader was not a position, but rather an action. Senior captains Randy Haines, Chad Blevens, and Andrew Kiernan tried to perform this task to the best of their abilities. Sometimes being a leader means that one must be a role model for a younger generation to look up to. Kiernan said, "I knew that if there was any motivation needed that it was somewhat my job to step up to the plate with a good old boring speech. Blevens said, "When my teammates were being weaksauce, I felt it was my job to hand out a tube of 'V.'" Haines said, "When some of the underclassmen weren't performing well, I sometimes had to give them a swift kick to the rear."

The JV team played a great year. They came together as a team through hard work and had an undefeated season. The team started their season with a tough game against Valpo, with LC winning out.

The team went on to win three games in nine days, beating out Kokomo, Hobart, and Highland. Then four days later won out against Portage, followed by South Bend Clay three days after that. After resting for less than a week, getting in valuable practice time, the soccer players went back to the field to defeat Kankakee Valley and Lafayette Harrison. After another short rest, the team continued their winning streak beating out Andrean, South Bend Adams, and Merrillville. Then they played Griffith, the team's only non-win of the year. The game ended in a tie, maintaining their undefeated season. Following this near loss, the team took on and beat Chesterton, Munster, and Wheeler.

The team then finished the season with a hard won victory over Crown Point. Thus finishing of the season with a 15-0-1 record. But the victories did not come easy. When not winning out over other schools, the team would practice. Practices began even before the school year started. The players came together as a team and an undefeated season. "It was mostly a team effort," said head coach Kelsey Summa.

"It was a good year. We kept up our undefeated streak from last year," said soccer player Matthew Toczek (10).

The varsity tennis team won more than 50 percent of their matches with a 8-6 record. The team started off strong with a 5-0 record. The season was off to a good start with four returning varsity starters. Although the remainder of the season was a rocky one, they kept high hopes for sectionals. They defeated Highland in the first match 3-2 but fell short against Lowell in the second sectional match.

The MVP award was shared by the number one doubles team composed of Dave Hills and Ben Labas. This doubles team captured first at the Highland Doubles Invitational and shared a record of 15-7. This team also made the All-District Doubles Team and an honorable mention at All-State.

Jamey Eckstein, the number one singles player, and John Fuentes, the number two singles player, were on the All-District Singles team. Dave Hills and Jamie Eckstein received Academic All-State. John Fuentes received the most improved play award and held a record of 13-7. Upon receiving the most improved player award, John Fuentes said, "I was very surprised to receive this award. There were many team members that had improved, such as Josh Kaufman."

The boys tennis team experienced their share of ups and downs, but their coach, Mr. Ralph Holden, spoke positively: "The boys tennis team exceeded my expectations this year. I thought anything near 500 would be outstanding, but they surpassed that, despite the fact that we added two harder teams to our schedule and dropped two easier ones. We did far better than I expected."

Senior tennis stars saw their high school tennis careers coming to an end. Dave Hills said, "I will miss the camaraderie between me and all my teammates."

Pasta Parties

Cramming in Carbs

On Thursday night when most LC students were sitting home watching Must See TV, the athletes were getting ready to go out and party--that is, go to a pasta party. It's been LC tradition that the night before the big game all athletes get together at someone's house and chow down on the carbs to store up energy for the next day.

These parties gave teammates the chance to bond, pump each other up for the game, and eat. The athletes, however, weren't the only ones to show up at the parties. Pasta parties gave fans a chance to come out and show their school spirit. "I loved going to the pasta parties so I could help support my friends and team," said junior Ashlee Ninkovich.

As the parties moved from house to house, moms and dads took turns cooking for their sports stars. Reoccurring favorite dishes were spaghetti, ravioli, and mostacioli with cookies and rice crispy treats for dessert. "I liked having the pasta parties at my house because my mom is a good cook and I got to have all my teammates and close friends over," said senior Chris Ogden.

As the night wore on, music was listened to, heads were shaved as freshmen paid their dues, and mean games of spades were played. "Pasta parties make it possible for teammates to unite," said senior Nick Kruse. As teammates ate and laughed together, they bonded on a different level, getting in the zone and focusing on game.

Some of the varsity football players sit back and relax to let all the pasta in their stomachs settle before continuing to party.

The 13 members of the girls cross country team proved that quantity does not always equal quality. Although the team consisted of many underclassmen and was significantly smaller this year, the girls held their own against larger and more experienced teams. The size of the team allowed members to get to know each other better. "Everyone was like each other's best friend. We became very close," said freshman Allison Couwenhoven. A team trip to Brown County during the summer provided an opportunity for the girls to practice together as a team for the first time.

The Indians enjoyed an undefeated season in dual and triangular meets. The young team gained valuable experience running in large invitational against the best teams in the state. When sectionals rolled around, local newspapers underestimated their skill and determination, but were quickly forced to write headlines that declared the Indians victorious. "We weren't even considered the darkhorse," remarked sophomore Liz Genova "but we worked together to beat the odds." Placing 1-2-6-9-24, the team earned their tenth straight sectional trophy.

Unfortunately, the season came to a halt for the majority of the team at regionals. Many team members were disappointed with their failure to proceed to semi state, but gathered together in support of individual qualifiers junior Tiffany Redlarczyk and freshman Susan Allegretti, who placed first and second at regionals. Redlarczyk placed second at semi state and advanced to the state finals while Allegretti finished a respectable forty-second. Capping off an incredible season, Redlarczyk placed second at the state meet and earned all-state honors. Many of her teammates came to cheer her on, proving the slogan on their "Fantastic Attitude Team" sweatshirts true. "This was definitely a year to remember," said Genova.

Sticks flaring, skates flying across the ice, bodies getting checked. This is what comes into your mind when you think of hockey. And LC's hockey team doesn't let you down. They practiced and played hard for length of the season, and had lots of fun doing it.

If nothing else, the hockey team is dedicated. They practiced for several hours each week, getting up early on Saturday mornings to get on ice practice. From beginning to end, their season is nearly six months.

Dedication and Teamwork Lead the way for a Great Hockey Season.

The team doesn't even have an ice rink. They have to drive 20 miles away to practice and play the "home" games. They had mostly Illinois games, but also played at Fort Wayne and Indianapolis.

In January, the hockey team participated in the 6th Annual Crossover Classic in Carmel. It was a competition to test individual player's talents. LC had three players get first. Brian Lerner got best accuracy, Joe Laski got fastest slapshot, and Brad Newell got fastest skater. Overall, it was a good day for the team.

In February, the team won the chance to play in the United Center. No, they didn't play the pros; they played another high school team. But it was still a great time. "It was mostly just to go out and have fun," said Sean Hamilton (10), one of LC's players.

While not the most popular team from LC, the hockey team played hard. They traveled far and practiced often to play the game they love. And it is a season that none of them will ever forget.

While most LC students were at home sleeping during the lazy summer mornings, the boys cross country team was out and about. The team began practicing in June after school let out and ran through the hot 90 and 100-degree days pushing their bodies to the max to make that last mile. The team conditioned throughout the summer whether it was at LC or on their own time. When the season began, they would all be the best they could be with the goal of a state championship in mind and in reach. Mr. Rudy Skorupa and Mr. Jeff Rhody coached the boys once again, and veteran seniors Nick Kruse, Drew Crague, and Chris Collela along with junior Bret Schloer, showed impeccable leadership.

Several top finishes and wins helped the team pave the way for the state championship. The team began their season with a second-place finish at the Harrison Invitational. They also won first place at the Rensselaer Invitational, tied for second place at North Prairie, and ended up with third place after a tie breaker.

Running strong for a justified return to state

The team next moved on to sectionals and won first place, making it their eleventh win in the past 12 years. After winning sectionals, the team advanced on to regionals with yet another first place finish. At semi-state the team finished second with top runners Kruse and Crague finishing in fourth and twelfth place. With the team's amazing finish at semi-state, they made their goal start to look like reality. The team had a disappointing finish in fifteenth place, and LC's top two runners weren't excited with their finish either with; Kruse placed sixteenth individually, and Crague came in fifty-fifth individually.

The team was able to stay focused and devoted to their sport while they grew stronger as individuals and a team. In the end, the weeks of sweating through the summer practices paid off as the seniors sailed through their season leaving the rookies wondering who could ask for anything more?

Leading the Pack

Each team needs a leader; sometimes a team needs more than one leader. On LC's boys cross country team, seniors Nick Kruse and Drew Crague felt it was their duty to lead the team to state once again.

Both runners had made running a huge part of their lives. They ran track in the spring and cross in the fall. Even during the winter they continued to work hard and train. But these guys weren't always the most serious when it came to running. They always found ways to have fun and sometimes to cause mischief. Crague said, "Overall, I think we did fairly well this season and I want to congratulate all my teammates by giving them a thumbs up!" Kruse said, "It was a surprising finish for all of us because we worked so hard during the season. I know that our shoes will be hard to fill."

With one state champion and various other state qualifiers, who could ask for anything more? The varsity wrestling team rocketed past sectionals and regionals, only to fall short to the semi-state competition of Portage. "I think our sectional is a knock-down, drag-out dogfight, and I thought three or even all four of the teams could have won," Coach Bob Emerick said.

Despite this disappointment, the team had its best season in years. With a record of 11-3 LC has shown that they were a tough competition among schools in the region.

With tough competition in the individual sectional, seven wrestlers earned first place honors and went on to help the team win their first regional victory in over a decade. It was no surprise that Michael Escobedo clinched a state title once again at the 153-pound weight class. He finished his season at an outstanding 53-0, the only LC wrestler to be undefeated this year. Other outstanding wrestlers include Brian Hurley, Aaron Buchler, Luke Triveline, and Justin Mora, which were all state qualifiers.

Much hard work and effort was put in this season during the grueling practices. Everyday after school, and occasionally on Saturday, the team would practice for two long hard hours. Their hard practice ethic was driven by Coach Emerick and helped make a well-disciplined varsity wrestling team. With guidance from coaches Bob Emerick, Andy Trevino, and Scott Hiliyard the team has developed their talent drastically over the season. With many coaches to guide the team, substantial one-on-one coaching was available to all the wrestlers. "I used to rely on strength, but now Coach Trevino (assistant coach Andy Trevino) is teaching me to use my talent," said Brian Hurley (12).

The varsity lady Indian volleyball team, although young this year, proved they could keep up with and beat out teams with older players. The Lady Indians went 29-8, an impressive record, since the girls took on new challenges this year playing higher ranked teams. "Playing a harder schedule helped us mature into better players and fix our mistakes," said junior Katie Chick.

Jessie Shelby, the only senior on the team, inspired the girls throughout the year. "It was a really good experience. All the juniors stepped up and played like pros," said Shelby. Her expertise and great attitude created team spirit and a tight bond between all the girls. This year was a great conclusion to her LC volleyball career.

The lady Indians were sectional champs for the second consecutive year. Returning players from last year's winning sectional team helped the ladies clinch the title again. Coaches, Karen Arehart and Bill Gray, and assistant coach Courtney Qualls were proud of the great finish to the season. "It was very nice to win back to back sectionals, and we hope to continue this tradition," said Coach Arehart. "We went one step further this year than last. The girls played a great season."

Knees skid across the floor as the girl JV and freshmen volleyball players hit the ground to save the ball. The JV team had a slow start but overcame their difficulties and finished their season with triumph. "In the beginning of the season, practices seemed endless," said sophomore Megan Melcic. "Finally we started working like a team and the real fun began." Teamwork wasn't the only obstacle the girls had to rise above, injuries also paid a toll in the beginning of the season. Starting setter Sophomore Alison Verplaetse had stress fractures and was out for the first two weeks of the season. "Having Alison out really turned our team upside down. Not only was she our captain,

Coming together in the end

but we also had the problem of finding a new setter," said sophomore Val Trembecki. Luckily for the girls Katie Mis, right side, stepped up and while Verplaetse was gone. The team also had two more injuries throughout the season. Lead by captains Alison Verplaetse and Danielle Fulayter, the girls conquered their setbacks and ended the season with a 24-7 record.

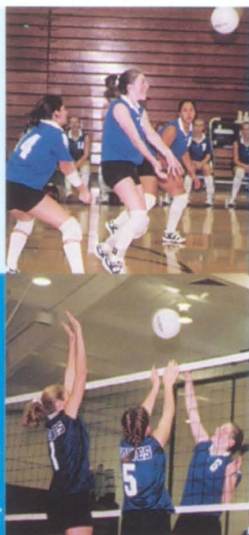

The freshmen girls made room for adjustments as they came together as a whole. Coached by Cara Klaich, the girls ended their season with a record of 24-7. Each game the girls took turns on who was captain. This really helped the girl's teamwork. "Most of us are already friends so it was really easy for us to play together. As long as we were playing together we were having fun," said freshmen Jen Allison. Although the team knew how to have a good time, they didn't let that get in the way of working hard. They gave their complete attention to their practices and only wanted to get better. Their dedication paid off.

Quick shots and passes. Free throws and 3-point shots. These are the images that basketball bring. Though not the school's main focus of attention, the JV and freshman basketball teams worked hard and both got winning seasons. Led by a powerful group of players, the JV team went on to an incredible season that ended 17-1. The team practiced hard, going into the gym Monday through Saturday, every week of the season. They worked out with varsity, constantly honing their shots and plays. The team was lead on and off the court by star sophomore players Justin Doffin, Kevin Parkinson, and Krste Krstevski. They played all over the area, Crown Point to LaPorte. And they consistently beat them. They were like a bulldozer, jump-shooting and lay-upping their way to victory. During the hot, lazy summer days when all LC students were relaxing by their pools, the girls swim team was in the pool conditioning for their up-coming season. The girls kept in shape over the summer by practicing at LC's pool, playing an occasional game of ultimate Frisbee, or even going to various swim camps.

This year the team was coached by Jim Tonkovich and led by senior captains, Liz Barajas, and Blair Fowler. Once the school year started, the girls were slowly adjusting to their full-time swimming mode. The girls would soon encounter their two-a-day practices, one at 4:55 a.m., and weight lifted after school from 2:30 until 3:15, followed by swim practice from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

LC swim team makes best ever appearance at state meet

If the early mornings were tiring for the girls, they refused to let it show. They remained undefeated at LC's pool for the season. Also, the girls had an amazing season away from home. They swam against North Central and defeated them by one point. This was a huge victory for the girls, because North Central was ranked second in the state. "The season was so positive, I can't wait to see what next year brings," said junior Lauren Ausmus.

This year's team had plenty of depth to go along with it. Many talented underclassmen participated in their season's success. Freshmen, Stephanie Moon and Aubree Biegel were two girls that help guide their team to a fourth place finish at state.

After the regular season was over, the girls advanced to sectionals. As always, sectionals were held at LC, and they finished first. They won every event in the sectional finals. Many of the girls qualified for the state meet at the IUPUI Natatorium in Indianapolis. Placing sixteenth last year at state, they knew that they had the talent to make a better finish. Their fourth-place finish was the best appearance the girls' team had ever made at the state level for swimming. Senior Amanda Willett said, "We had some really good freshman come in this year, we all got along, and were always there for each other." With the talent that the girls' team brought this year to the state level, they should have no problem competing for years to come.

Freshmen start new tradition

This year the girls swim team managed to make the best ever appearance at the state level ever for our school with the help of two talented freshman. Both Aubrette Biegel and Stephanie Moon have been swimming since they were little and they know how much hard work is demanded to be good at such a difficult and challenging sport. Moon competed in the 200 IM and some relays, and Biegel competed in the 500 Free and some relays too. Both girls were sectional champs in multiple events and placed well in the state meet. With the help of these two freshman the girl's team should be successful for years to come. Moon said, "We worked hard as a team and it all paid off in the end," and Biegel also replied, "I am still excited on how we did and I am already looking forward to next season...Cheers!"

At 4:30 in the morning in the middle of winter, most LC students are comfortably snuggled under their blankets in a world of sleep for another hour and a half. But there are a select group of individuals that give up this luxury because of their dedication to their sport for five months out of the year. During this time they live with sore muscles, constant fatigue, early mornings, late nights, and the smell of chlorine. For the boys swim team, this hectic schedule was a way of life that would pay off big.

Boys team has great season with 17th sectional victory

With Ryan Harrington as the new head coach the team worked harder then ever under his leadership. Nicknamed "The Boss" by his swimmers, Harrington rose to the occasion by leading the team to a 14-1 record, a sectional victory, and an 11th place finish at state. As an added bonus, Harrington received the coach of the year award at sectionals.

At sectionals the team looked better then ever with strong swims by Matt Frost, Clint Marshall, Ryan Franklin, Dave Nagdaman, Joe Boney, Ryan Dalton, Jamie Eckstein and many others. The team placed first in 9 out of 11 events and received first, second, and third in two races. First place honors were awarded to Clint Marshall, Matt Frost, Jamie Eckstein, and Joe Boney. As a result of their candid performance the boys' team qualified 11 swimmers for the state meet. As a token of thanks the boys' team threw "The Boss" in the pool after receiving their seventeenth consecutive sectional championship.

After their sectional victory, the team focused their attention to state. With a seventh-place finish by Nagdaman in the 100, and a ninth- place finish by Eckstein in the 500, the team had their best state finish in three years.

Splashing into the pool was an everyday occurrence for LC's diving team. This year's diving team plunged into a successful season. With only seven members, they were a very tight knit bunch. They were coached by Ms. Valerie Smith. "This is a good group of students. I am lucky to be working with them. They had a lot of fun this season and have progressed well," said Coach Smith.

The diving team is affiliated with the swimming team. However, the difference between the two was definitely the size, because the coed diving team consisted of only six girls and one boy. Also, there was the fact that there was not a JV team. This was a sport that required a lot of focus and balance. "During the season, I haven't just bounced on the board during the meet. I have made all my dives this year," said junior Allison Komarowski.

All of their hard work paid off this year. They had an impressive performance at sectionals, and they advanced strongly to regionals. Lake Central sent more divers to regional than other team competitors: Kate Mitchell, Allison Komarowski, and Angela Malinowski. Mitchell advanced to state for the second straight year with a fifth-place finish. Komarowski finished in twelfth place, while Malinowski got seventeenth place. "I was just proud of the way they dove," Smith said. With this kind of outstanding achievement, our diving team is something LC can be proud of.

The girls varsity basketball season began with an optimistic start. They had an outstanding record of 10-1 halfway through the season. After they defeated Crown Point they struggled for the remainder of the season. The varsity team's final record was 13-9. Even though their record wasn't what they would have wanted, they went into post season with high hopes. The first game in sectionals was played against Munster. They came out victorious with a score of 51-40. The next game they went up against West Side, and unfortunately they lost 38-54. Though their post season wasn't up to their expectations, they still finished with a rewarding season.

Shooting for your Dreams

Awards night proved to be a good ending to a memorable season. Kim Haviar and Linsey Smith received the Co-MVP award. Kim Haviar's thought upon receiving this honor was, "I was excited and flattered to be presented with such a prestigious award."

Melissa Fanelli took home the hustle award for her die-hard attitude for the game. When presented with the sportsmanship award Emily Smitka remarked, "It meant a lot to me to have earned this award." Brandi Shields was the scholar athlete for having the highest GPA on the team. Best mental attitude was given to Sam Singler. Faneli, Shields, and Smitka all received the captain's award for representing their team throughout the season as captains. All the girls went home proud of their accomplishments.

The girls basketball team enjoyed an unforgettable season. They worked well as a team trying to achieve their goals. Though they did not come out triumphant in their last game against West Side, they still had the memories that will last a lifetime.

The girls JV and freshman basketball teams had a season full of drives to the basket, dunks, and dribbles. Directed by their coaches, Coach Megysi, Coach Downey, and Coach Fitzgerald, they learned how to use skills, endurance, and dedication to have a successful season and a great time. Both teams faced fierce opponents, but their hard work paid off. The freshman team had an exciting year full of new experiences for the new high school students. They learned from their mistakes throughout the season and their basketball careers. Their aspirations were high and the skill they possessed would carry them through. As Melissa Engle (9) felt, "I had fun during the season and I hope to make varsity next year." All the players had great potential. The JV team consisted of more freshmen than usual. The more experienced players made them feel welcome and a unity grew evident in the team as the season progressed. They worked together to have a great time and a lot of wins. The JV season swept the fans away with an ending record of 12-5. They were especially proud of their win against Valpo. Junior Lauren Kucera expressed, "Our hardest team was Valpo, which we previously lost by 10. The second time we played them was the most exciting game because we won by one in the last second of the game. It was intense all the way till the last buzzer." Both teams had an exciting year and their basketball futures looked bright.

With flips, jumps, and liberties, the varsity cheerleaders led the way to victory. The team began practicing in March after try-outs and through the summer, achieving perfection through the coaching of Ms. Joan Loden, along with seniors, captain Kristen Detmar, and co-captain Vanessa Witherow.

Some changes were in store for the cheerleaders this summer. They didn't go to camp; camp came to them and was held at LC by three NCA staff members for three days. As school started, so did football games, giving the cheerleaders the chance to display what they had practiced all summer. Football season quickly came and went and faded into basketball season. "I loved cheering at basketball games because we got to show off our tumbling skills and stunts for the crowd," said junior Mallory Bryant.

Cheerleaders provide will to win

The girls cheered their hearts out this year at competitions at the Navy Pier Classic and Great America. "I loved competitions because people were actually cheering for us instead of us cheering for them," said senior Adrian Sickles.

They had an amazing first-place finish at regionals. Next, the girls advanced to state and captured sixth place. Senior Holly Kaminski also competed individually and won first place. "I had a blast at state, but if we would have executed the routine better, we would have placed higher," said senior, Laura Haynes. After state, the girls moved on to Nationals in Indianapolis, competing against teams from all over the Mid-West. They finished in the top five in prelims to qualify for finals where they placed fourth.

Through thick and thin, the girls were able to stick together and support each other. With an excellent group of upperclassmen leaders, the girls have paved the way for upcoming squad members. "We've gone through many hardships and injuries together, but we've always been there for each other and come through as a team," said Witherow.

Cheerleading isn't only business when seniors Kristen Detmar, Holly Kaminski, and Holly Norris have time to take a fun picture.

Boys golf enjoyed another outstanding year with positive leadership from juniors Jay Hendron and Kyle Brown. With the loss of two graduating seniors, and the addition of no new faces, Hendron and Brown rose to the occasion by instilling great talent and leadership qualities to their team.

Boys Golf Exceeds Expectations with Terrific Season

Along with the commanding leadership of the upperclassmen, there was also much talent in the sophomore underclass of Jim Matura, Keith Opat, Paul Meyers, and Tom Dutko. At the midpoint of the season, the team claimed a record of 8-3. "If we keep up our strong performance, I think we might have a possible run at state," said junior Scott Evanson.

"I think that because we lost two very talented seniors last year, many people did not expect much from us this year," said Matura. The team showed tremendous talent and depth at the LC Invite with a score of 128, which earned them a third-place finish. Hendron shot a 79, while Opat shot an 80. "I think the key to our successful play is our ability to work as a team and build from our mistakes," said Brown.

With days of torrential down pour and rainouts, the Indians began with a soggy start. The staff of head coach, Mr. Todd Iwema, and assistant coaches Mr. Jim Nohos, Mr. Louie Aguilar, and Mr. Paul Wirtz did not let the 12 rainouts get the team's spirits down. "With a lot of rainouts, it's been difficult to come together, but when time comes for sectionals, we'll be competitive," said junior Jose Mendez. The Indians exploded with the defeat of Andean, Highland, and the 2001 state runner-up, Griffith. The boys also dominated at the Mt. Vernon Classic 2-0. Memorial Game.

Not only did the boys have to deal with rain, but with only two returning seniors, Ryan Buchler and Kevin Furman, a whole new team had to be trained. "We're such a young team, no one expected our success," said Buchler. The team successfully trained the underclassmen to be competitive on the field. Sophomores Mike Couwenhoven and John Babinski, along with freshmen Brett Summers and Ryan Goodman have potential to be future team leaders.

Between grueling practices, game cancellations, and molding the new team, leaders emerged and traditions were set. Senior Kevin Furman said, "After pre-game, we go to center field to have a moment for silence where Cory Topp fell and that's where we really come together and really become a team." The young Indians truly did become a team this year and pulled together under tremendous team bonds and leadership.

Running and jumping, these are practically the only things that most people thought of when they heard of the boys track team. And they weren't disappointed. The season officially kicked off in February, but pre-season practice starts earlier and is voluntary for those who want to succeed. Practices started hard and fast, with many runners a little rusty and out of shape. In time, everyone soon got back into the rhythm of the season very soon. There were hard days and easy days. But the practices that people most dreaded were the Hill and Berger Memorial, both very tough workouts that one would find themselves crawling on the ground at the end. The season kicked off indoors with an intersquad meet. This was a time for some rookies to get a chance to run without all the pressures of competition. The track team then went on with its indoor season and was successful. Soon, the team went to the much awaited outdoor meets. Despite the rain and wind every track meet, everyone ran hard and fast. According to Coach Jeff Rhody, "There was a lot of leadership on this team." Though everyone was good, some stuck out and led their events. The short sprints were led by sophomores Nick Bodie and Alex Szewciw. The hurdles were dominated by sophomore state qualifier, Brian "Skip" Kaluf. The long and high jumps were headed by freshman Chris Czapla who qualified for state also. The shot put and discus were led by senior state qualifier Brian Wesley and junior state qualifier Jeff Biancardi. The middle distance races were lead by senior Andrew Kiernan with the help of junior Jerry Karvasale. The distance races were dominated by seniors Nick Kruse and Drew Crague who both were state qualifiers. Although some of the area's best runners are graduating, the young talent should stand out even more for next year's success. ## Young Talent

Track offers many events that one can take part in. At our school, everybody is allowed to participate. Some just have that talent to actually be competitive. Sophomore Mike Toth and freshman Curtis Pratt showed their dedication in the short distance events. Both guys participated in the 200, 400 meter race, and the 4 by 400 meter relay. Both guys work every day together in hopes to be the best in the region. As the season concluded, both runners had comments about the season. "I thought that the practices were harder this year, which made my teammates and I work harder for another sectional victory. Although, winning the relay at sectionals was the best part of my whole season," said Toth. "I had a great time this season. This year's track team was a year in the making. The team started conditioning in the fall, calling it Fall Fanatics. As the colder weather approached, the girls prepared for arriving season with the Winter Warriors conditioning program. "I am glad that we had the opportunity to prepare for the season all year long. I feel it really made an impact on my performance," said Becky Hart (9).

The season started out indoors, but the girls ran outside in every type of weather. This helped them prepare for the unseasonably cold weather at the first few outdoor track meets. The team even ran in the snow when Munster canceled a meet because of inclement weather. "I remember when it started to snow at the end of the outdoor Chesterton meet," said Megan Bodnar (12).

The team celebrated their eleventh straight sectional victory this year. Mr. Tom Clark also returned as coach. Hard work and determination drove these girls to a remarkable season. The team also enjoyed the season by having fun and hanging out at the meets. "It's not just about being a good runner, it's also about having a good time," said Jenny Guillen (12). The first game of the season is about to start. The players take the field anxiously as they as they try to stay focused. The fielders wait in anticipation as the first pitch is thrown. Everyone is optimistic that this will be the season that LC will go all the way.

After losing six of the starters on the Varsity softball team, the girls pulled together and had a notorious season. Once the season ended the team ranked third in state and won 20 games and lost only one to Andean, 2-0. The team beat the number three-ranked team at the time, Penn, 2-0, defeated Lafayette by the skin of their teeth, 1-0 in, 14 innings, and slaughtered Merrillville 15-0. "The surprising thing is that with all of the rain and game cancellations we had, the girls only had 21 games, and in the end came out with one of the best records LC has ever seen," commented Coach Keith Hauber.

Three seniors lead young Indians to triumphant season

With four pitchers and two of them were split in two since they played on JV and Varsity. Junior Amy Wierzbicki, Sophomore Bethany Toyas, and Freshmen Britney Gard were 8-0 for the season. The saying three up three down became well known as the pitchers were on fire as they struck out ten batters in a row.

Things were looking good. The team was winning and everything was on LC's side. Then they lost six starters to the final four team and three with injuries. As fractured finger and toe, and even worse, a concussion held up a few players, it was not enough to stop the fighting lady Indians as they continued to crush every team they came up against.

Playing in only the McCutchen Invitational, the team clinched first place after trampling over a school outside of Kokomo, McCutchen, and Penn.

"I could not be happier with winning at least 20 games in the past 17 years and winning the McCutchen Invitational. This was definitely a season to remember," said Coach Hauber.

Fine arts students possess remarkable talent

On the field or the stage, in the studio or art rooms, LC's fine arts department showed their talent to the school. Students created prize-winning artwork, phenomenal plays, and sounds of sweet music and song. From the Centralettes to the art club, LC students had the creativity everyone wished for.

The art students painted, sculpted, and drew with many new techniques. Their artwork was displayed throughout the school, so everyone could see who the talented artist was. The Tribe of Pride performed at the halftime shows and competed in competitions. They received many awards for their hard work and dedication. The concert band also competed and took home many honors.

The extra-curricular bands, like jazz band got the fans pumped as they played the fight song and many other high-energy songs at the basketball games. The Centralettes entertained us on the field and on the gym floor. Their unique dance style placed them well at state and national level competitions. The drama students amazed us with their talented acting and singing abilities. They produced many plays that had the audiences clapping with excitement or laughing with tears running down their checks. The choirs amazed everyone with their songs. The extracurricular choirs added a little pep to their songs by putting together dance numbers to fit the songs.

No matter where the fine arts department is, they show that with creativity and hard work, beautiful, drawing, sculptures, music, plays, songs and dance can be produced. The fine art department showed us that...We couldn't have asked for anything more.

A Night in the Arts

Fine Arts Concert Proves to be Great

The Fine Arts concert always proves to be an evening of fun. With band, choir, theatre, and dance students performing, there was something for every audience member to enjoy. This year, the concert was on Tuesday, April 9.

Starting the concert was the Symphonic Band. They played three numbers: "Coast Guards," "Incantations" and "Celebration and Dance." Next, the Concert Band performed "On An American Spiritual" and "Lament and Tribal Dances." The Wind Ensemble amazed everyone with "Chorale and Alleluia" and "Celebrations." The Jazz Ensemble I closed the first act with several pieces, featuring seniors Mike Hodges and Matt Verplate, junior Ryan Soto, and freshman Peter Koopmans on different solos.

Concert Choir opened the second act. They performed their I.S.S.M.A. pieces which included "Ziguernerleben," "Lacymosa," and "Rock My Soul." The Counterpoints next sang "God Bless the Child" and "That's a Plenty," an upbeat song with dancing and narration by senior Ashley Hayhurst. The Trebleaires ended the choir segment with "My Funny Valentine" and "The Shoop Shoop Song."

The theatre performed pieces from their recently closed musical "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

The Centralettes featured senior Annie Pelka dancing to "Please Forgive Me" which took second place at state competition. The Junior Varsity came onstage and performed their pom routine to "Rock 'N Roll Medley." The national champion Varsity Centralettes performed sections of their routines "Power of Goodbye" and "Turn It Up."

Closing the concert was The Lake Effect Winter Percussion Group performed "Metropolis."

Different artwork was displayed in the lobby in addition to all the great acts. The Fine Arts Concert proves to the public that Lake Central has many talented students who have worked hard to get where they are.

Dancing Queens

Varsity Centralettes Reign Supreme

The nationally ranked varsity Centralettes started out their season showing their skills either on the weapon line or with their colorful flags. They participated in BOA Regionals in both Louisville, Kentucky and Indianapolis, and also in the BOA Grand Nationals held at the RCA Dome in Indianapolis. Although the Tribe of Pride and the Centralettes did not make state finals, the hard work paid off with all of the excitement and enthusiasm from other teammates.

After the color guard season, the varsity Centralettes stepped into their dancing shoes, and began to pave their way into the dance season led by the only two seniors, Annie Pelka and Jillian Lessard. The Varsity got into the groove with a Madonna remix of "The Power of Goodbye." New to the season was an ensemble of only seven Varsity members who danced to "Beautiful People" instead of having another full team performance.

Pelka, the only solo representing the Varsity squad, performed to "Please Forgive Me" by David Gray. Being the only solo, Pelka represented the team with receiving a first place at the Munster Invitational, third place at the LC Dance Invitational, and also a third place at Regional which Qualified her for State. "The competition is getting harder to beat every year not only in the solo competition but in the team competition too," voiced Pelka. "Many teams are catching up to our ability level, so it is also harder for the whole team as well." Varsity placed first in Division I Jazz, and also in their first appearance in the large ensemble at Regionals.

Varsity traveled to Lawrence North High School to compete in state competition. The varsity won their eighth straight state title, and received first places in Division I Jazz and in the large ensemble. Pelka was thrilled to hear her name announced as the runner-up in senior solo competition.

As soon as the varsity got back from state, the team had one more week of practice until nationals in Orlando, Florida. Held at Universal Studios, the team was first place in preliminaries. On Sunday the varsity Centralettes gained another championship with their jazz routine, and they came back home with their third national championship in five years. "I felt great," said Lessard on being a national champion. "I felt like the hard work for four years paid off, and it was all worthwhile." Lessard also commented on being on a 3-time championship team. "We are really lucky to have a staff that gives us these awesome routines, and we were very fortunate to have such a good team as well."

The Varsity Centralettes strike a painful pose as they exhibit their extraordinary flexibility.

★ Dancing to Perfection

★ JV Centralettes Do It Again ★

JV Centralettes began their season as the color guard for the marching band. Most members had to learn how to spin a flag while marching at the same time. The members demonstrated their skills in the summer parades, and went to band camps in August to learn the drill for the competing season. The color guard competed with the band in ISSMA state competitions and BOA Regional and National competitions. Even though the band and color guard didn't qualify for state or BOA finals, all the members enjoyed the experience and considered their efforts worthwhile.

When the color guard season ended, the JV members turned in their flags in return for their dance shoes. New to the Centralettes was the new dance studio across from the high school. The facility offered more room and floors more accustomed to dancing.

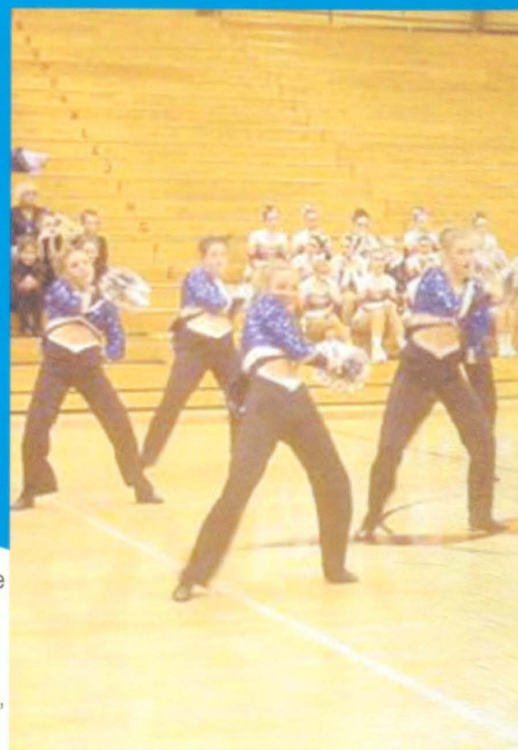

JV competed in two categories, pom and jazz. The pom routine consisted of tight arm movements while moving to a DJ mix of Madonna, Jennifer Lopez, and others. The song for the jazz routine is hard-core rock 'n roll, and the moves were biker style.

The non-competing team, which only performed basketball games during the dance season, had three upbeat routines. "Egyptian" was a mix of Mandy Moore's "Hand in my Pocket," "Party" was off the Dr. DoLittle Soundtrack, and a cut version of *NSYNC's "Pop" pumped up the crowds at the basketball games.

While the rest of the school danced the night away at Winter Formal, the JV Centralettes danced their hearts away at Regionals in Portage, gaining first place finishes in Division IV Pom and Dance. Jessica Langlois, Jennifer Lebryck, and Melissa Villagomez received first place in the small ensemble competition.

At state Langlois, Lebryck, and Villagomez received another award: second place in the small ensemble division. Freshman Dani Leatherman placed fifth in the junior solo division. The JV placed first in jazz but lost first to Munster in Division IV Pom. JV still earned a well deserved second place.

The JV squad ended their season with a positive attitude and a determination to come back and do it again.

Slaves, masters, lovers, soldiers, pirates, and harem girls. These were the elements of the spring musical, A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum.

The play had a stellar cast, led by senior Bruce Fane (12), who played Pseudolus the slave. Brandon Denton played Hyserium, friend and fellow slave. The love stricken young boy, Hero, was played by J. T. Eagan (10), with Andy Hanizewski (9) in junior cast. Hero's parents, Senex and Domina, were played by Nick Poteres (11) and Any Kiral, respectively, with Brandon Berk (10) and Emily Waggoner (10) on junior cast. Hero's true love, Philia, was played by Christine Widuger (11), with Nicole Odyde (9) on junior cast. The old man Erronius was played alternately by Matt Weaver (10) and Rob Knane (12). Marcus Lycus was played by Dan Villaseñor (12), with Vaughn Ganiyu (11) on junior cast. The soldier Captain Miles Gloriosus was played by Justin Riordan (11). Brandon Berk played Thespis the statue. Not named leads but definitely the most important roles in the show were the dancing courtesans. Amy Zandy, Taylor Garrison, Ashley Hayhurst, Katie Solina, Rachel Rockstroh, Aimee Hayhurst, Christina Reed, Denise Kolanczyk, Mary Imbrone, Jacquelyn Moredich, and Nicole Cisz played them.

There were also Proteans, the many extras, and, of course, the well stocked harem. The chorus is often overlooked, but they prove to work just as hard and make the show come alive.

The junior cast was given a night to perform, and they did an excellent job. They had worked as hard as normal cast and got to show what their endless hours of rehearsing ended up turning into. It was definitely a success.

According to Fane, "I thought that this was one of my favorite plays at LC. The cast really came together as a family." Senior Taylor Garrison said, "I was not a lead in this show, but I think I had a better time than any of the leads did. I actually enjoyed my part. I was onstage for a few minutes, and hung out with all my friends backstage."

After eight performances and countless hours of grueling practice, A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum was definitely a success. This show is definitely one that both cast and audience members will remember for a long time to come.

Choir Takes Talent to New Places

With four different choirs, students kept fairly busy. Performing two Fall Concerts, three Christmas Concerts, one Classics Concert, two Spring Concerts, preparing for ISSMA contest and the St. Louis trip kept students working hard and learning about 30 pieces of music. "Choir is a lot of hard work, but it has been nothing but four years of fun," said senior Aimee Johnson.

Junior Treble Choir was the freshman all-girls choir. Varsity Choir was made up of mostly freshman boys and sophomore girls. Senior Treble was the advanced girls choir, containing sophomore and junior girls. Concert Choir was the most advanced mixed choir, made up of juniors and seniors.

Several students were in more than one choir. Laura Verbeeren, senior, said, "It's a lot of fun because I get to do stuff with a younger choir that doesn't take as much practice as it would in Concert Choir." Being involved in more than one choir helped strengthen one's vocal ability as well as their dedication. At the end of the year, about ten freshman girls were told that they would be in Concert Choir for the 2002-2003 school year. This is the first year in over ten years the choir department allowed this.

In late April, all the choirs traveled to Merrillville to perform in the ISSMA district competition. They all placed first. In early May, Senior Treble and Concert Choir headed down to St. Louis to participate in the Fiesta-val Music Competition. Senior Treble and Concert Choir both placed first with a superior rating. Seniors Eric Creasbaum and Jessica Schmidt were awarded with outstanding soloist trophies.

For the Spring Concert, eight seniors were chosen to sing solos they had picked out and prepared themselves. Katie Jacewicz, Taylor Garrison, Aimee and Ashley Hayhurst, Krista Earnshaw, Eric Creasbaum, Heather Foltz, and Jessica Schmidt were the ones who performed. "It was an honor to perform my solo at the last concert," said Garrison.

This year was one of the best for the choral department. With all the first-place ratings, the choir department had a very successful year and has many accomplishments to be proud of.

Ring my Bells

Hard works pays off

The Lake Central bell choirs have been in existence for nearly thirteen years. They started off with one bell choir and grew to two. With the coming of block scheduling, the choir department had the opportunity to expand the program for a total of three handbell choirs.

The handbells are played by ringing a hand-held bell and flicking the wrist. This current technique was not always used, however. Originating in Europe, bells were first introduced as a way for church tower ringers to practice at home, without waking up the whole town to practice. The bells looked much different, but still consisted of the same sound.

Lake Central's handbell choirs have had another successful year; however, there were no performances far outside of school, as most years past have had. When asked his feelings about the year, Director Michael T. Lewis said, "Unfortunately we are graduating a very experienced group of seniors who will be hard to replace." This year there are eleven graduating seniors, most who have played nearly five or six years. "It's been a great four years here at Lake Central, with many exciting experiences. We have become very close as a group and it will be hard to leave all the others," stated seniors Melissa Yankovich and Jackie McAleer. With yet another successful year, Lake Central handbell choirs continue to prove their outstanding abilities.

Sing...Sing...Sing....

Talent shown throughout Midwest

Counterpoints and Trebleaires loved what they did so much they stayed after school two days a week for about three hours to practice their songs and dances. They were constantly striving for perfection.

The two groups had students representing all grades. Counterpoints, the mixed boys and girls choir, contained fourteen seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore. J.T. Eagan, the lone sophomore, was often singled out, but it was all in love. Trebleaires, the all girl group, contained seven seniors, seven juniors, and two sophomores. "I enjoy Trebleaires, but I am looking forward to Counterpoints," said sophomore Cassie Riddle.

Both groups had an amazing year performance wise. Counterpoints received two first-place ratings at both district and state competition. Trebleaires also received a first at district and state. They traveled to St. Louis for the Fiesta-val competition. Both groups were awarded with a first-place rating, and Counterpoints were named champions of the festival. Senior Heather Foltz was awarded a trophy for outstanding solo of the day, and senior Alicia Martin was awarded outstanding pianist of the day.

Christmas season

once again kept them busy. "There was a different event each night. We saw a lot of each other in December," said senior Eric Creasbaum.

The Counterpoints performed at the graduation ceremony at the Star Plaza. The graduation song this year was "For Just A Little While." Seniors Nicole Garza and Bill Donovan were chosen to perform the two solos in the song. "Singing in front of all your classmates is really an honor, and I was so glad to do it," said Garza.

Many hours of practice, hard work, and determination helped these groups to a year of success.

Band goes Marching On

Tribe of Pride strives for top

Not only did the marching band do parades but they also did field shows. The marching band traveled all over Indiana and also went to Kentucky to compete in various marching band competitions.

Before the marching band even started to compete, the band was trained for parade season. The band did various parades, Schererville, Dyer, and Whiting Parades were some that they attended.

In August the band started training for the competing season by attending two marching band camps before the school year started. Both the band and Centralettes were present. The marching band show begin to come together during the camps. The band was able to show off their abilities at the end of the second band camp. The parents were also able to come see the band at this time.

During the marching and competing season Drum Majors Ryan Soto (11), Nicole Cisz (11), and Josh Rose (12) led the marching band through all their parades and competitions. Also leading the marching band were the section leaders. Some of section leaders this year were Jeni Rogan (11), Nicole Nelson (11), Rebekah Olenik (12), and Brian Hadt (12).

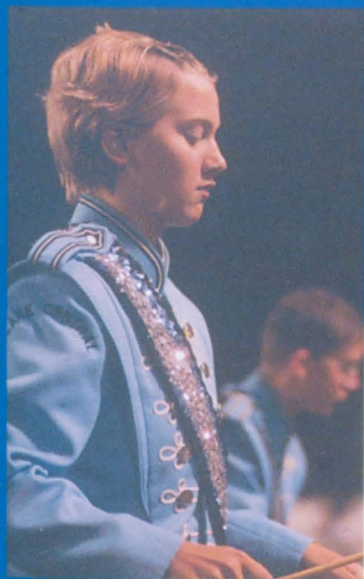

Even though the marching band members were not able to go to Homecoming, the band enjoyed a homecoming all their own. The marching band parents made the evening possible. At their homecoming they had a photographer, food, and beverages. The marching band even had their own court and king and queen, Rebekah Olenik (12) and Josh Rosh (12).

The band moved to an up tempo beat by playing music composed by Leonard Bernstein. The only played three different songs that made up the field show. The three parts included "On the Waterfront," "Fancy Free Ballet," and "Facsimile."

Although the band was only one-tenth of a point away from making state, the band kept up the hard work for future competitions. They traveled down to Indianapolis, twice, in hopes of making it into the semi-finals. They were in high hopes of getting into semi-finals at BOA Nationals but they missed it by only two places.

The marching band season ended and the band was happy with what they had accomplished. "I like marching band this year it was fun, and I especially liked the bus trips and competitions," spoke Brittney Plantinga (10).

Jazz and Percussion gain honors with hard work and dedication

Like sports, playing an instrument takes time and dedication in order to perfect a person's skill. It was not easy going to school for eight hours, doing homework, participating in clubs, and on top of that all, practicing was a must. No matter what it took, the Jazz Bands and the Percussion Ensemble did it and was able to go beyond their potential, never asking for anything more.

Practicing after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays and more days added and longer practices around concerts, the Jazz band had no reason to play the blues after winning first place at Indiana State University's Jazz Fest. "It was awesome to go and play down at Indiana State and hear others play. I didn't think we were going to win after hearing other people play, but we won," said sophomore Eric Mikalazewski.

During the rest of the year the Jazz band did other small gigs and concerts including LC's Valentine's Concert and gave a concert at Kahler Middle School.

Life kept getting better and better for the Jazz band once a high school from Plymouth Canton, Michigan featured Jazz Me Blues and Open Wide (The Happy Song) along with others that their concert performed at the Star Plaza in Merrillville on April 9.

Including a few eighth graders, the Percussion Ensemble started on a high note since it is a small, competitive group that seemed like one big happy family. "We have a percussion festival here and we were able to meet Nay Rosaro, a famous marimba player," reminisced sophomore Ashley Blatsioris.

During the winter drumline season, the Percussion Ensemble dressed up in costumes and has a theme all focused in on theater and a show conception in the gym. The season came to a close in March after performing in concerts at LC and throughout the area using music from the movie "Superman."

Taking a trip down to Indianapolis or another party of the state was never boring and dull moment was nowhere to be found. "On the bus, we would have a radio in the back and we would have improve sessions with the drums that were on," said Blatsioris.

Sophomore Ashley Blatsioris eagerly awaits for the conductor to give her a signal to start playing the vibraphone.

Aspiring Stars of LC

The fall plays "The Odd Couple" and "Don't tell mother" were a huge hit

Lights flashing, butterflies in your stomach, and no last minute rehearsals. These were just some of the few feelings that the LC Thespians felt on November 11th opening night. Every year LC puts on many great plays, and their fall play was no exception. This year's female version of the classic "The Odd Couple" and the action drama "Don't tell Mother" blew the audience away. With a hectic rehearsing schedule and a demanding deadline, the actors willingly devoted their time to make these plays another great addition to the LC theater legacy.

"The Odd Couple" comically portrayed what it would be like to live with someone your complete opposite. This play starred Ashley Hayhurst as the neat and tidy Florence and Kyla Webb as the messy Olive. The production "Don't Tell Mother" was about Cinnamon, an unexpected young girl who happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time. The unfortunate Cinnamon was played by sophomore Cassie Riddle. It was hard to believe this was Riddle's first lead role. She was asked if her character was anything like her own personality, and she replied, "Cinnamon was very shy and insecure of herself, and I am nothing like that." That is not surprising because for one to do these plays you must have nerves of steel. It will be hard to top these great plays, but LC never disappointed us

Shining Like a Star

Senior Students Show What It Takes To Be a Star

"I watched my older brother compete and enjoy band, and I wanted to experience the same." Senior Brian Hadt has participated in Concert Band and Wind Ensemble. He had also been a member of the Marching Band since freshman year. Hadt received the title of tuba section leader this year.

Hadt entered in the ISSMA Marching State Competition and the Bands of America Semi-Finals. He traveled to Toronto, Canada, Kentucky, and Indianapolis all for band competitions.

Hadt remembered standing at the Airlock at the RCA Dome waiting to perform for state competition. "When the doors opened, the light poured in. I got goose bumps, and I still get them when I think of it," Hadt said.

"I joined band freshman year and loved every minute of it."

Senior Kyle Gozo always kept himself busy in and out of school. He chose Art I, II, and III. He had also taken Photojournalism to increase art creativity. "Art has just always been my strong point." He worked to develop skills in sketching, painting, and photography in class and independently. His art was entered in many scholastic art shows through the area.

Besides art, his love for music shone through his famed band, TJJ. Gozo considers his band to be one of the most interesting and artistically creative opportunities of high school. He had been involved with his band since freshman year. Gozo's most active pursuit was definitely in guitar. The band won many competitions, such as the LC 2001 Talent Show and the Battle of the Bands. "I'm not sure why I joined TJJ. I guess I just wanted something new."

Gozo and the rest of the band shared future plans. "We are planning a road trip this summer." He sums up his high school experience very simply: "I don't know what I'd have done without the band."

Senior Kyla Webb was known for her spontaneous humor. "I enjoy entertaining people, and I needed to find an way for me to do it in a proper setting."

She had been a member of Lake Central Theatre Guild since the fall of her freshman year. She starred in 11 plays and musicals, some of which including Grease, Hamlet II, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, and Harvey. Webb had also been seen in one drama showcase, two improv shows, and she student directed two freshman plays.

To increase acting ability, Webb took classes at Second City in Chicago—the place where many famous actors began their career.

Webb has been nominated for Best Featured Actress in a Play from the Northwest Indiana High School Theatre Foundation.

Her best memory was getting her theatre ring from some of her best friends after one of her favorite shows, The Complete Works of Wm Shkspr.

Webb was confident of her success in the near future. "You will see me in movies or maybe on Saturday Night Live."

"I need to be dancing, and with Centralettes, I am dancing all the time," said senior Annie Pelka. While dancing, being in the marching band color guard, and being on the Indiana Danczforce All Stars competing team, she had time for nothing other than dance.

Pelka joined the varsity team freshman year. She entered and won many competitions. In her four years, she accumulated four first-place state finishes in the dance and pom categories, a national first-place title for dance, a first-place for a solo, a first-place for a duet, and a second-place finish in the national dance and pom competition just to name a few. She also won the IHSDTA dance scholarship for team members all over Indiana.

"Centralettes is hard work and it takes a lot of dedication. I think that says a lot about all the girls on the team, not just me."

Seniors Bill Donovan, Mandy Hackman, Katie Jacewicz, and Eric Creasbaum had been in choir since their freshman year. During sophomore year, they were the only four sophomores to make a show choir. Donovan and Creasbaum were placed in Counterpoints, and Jacewicz and Hackman were placed in Trebleaires. Junior and senior year they were all in Counterpoints, the highest show choir.

During these years, the four went to Toronto, Canada and St. Louis, Missouri. They received awards such as top show choir and first place in large ensemble. They had all attended I.S.S.M.A. Their groups never placed lower than first. Donovan placed second on his solo. Hackman placed first at regionals on her solo numerous times. Jacewicz had received a perfect score and has placed first at state. Creasbaum placed first at state this year. Junior year they all had the experience to sing with Kenny Rogers at the Star Plaza for his holiday program.

"Most of the people in the Counterpoint group have known each other from elementary school, so to sing with the same group of people for years has made us become a family," said Creasbaum. "I've met so many great people," said Donovan. "This is the best group I have ever been a part of, and it makes senior year wonderful," said Hackman. Jacewicz said, "All we do is sing and dance. We work together and achieve great things. We are just people getting together to do what we love...sing."

Senior Zach Koopmans is known for his many talents. He and his French horn have been a part of band since his freshman year. He also participated in Jazz Band and Marching Band. Junior year he joined Concert Choir. "I enjoy playing the horn, and singing seemed to be a natural help to my horn playing."

As if school participation were not enough, Koopmans has become first chair hornist in the Northwest Indiana Youth Symphony Wind Ensemble. He is also a member of the Madison Scouts Drum and Bugle Corps.

Koopmans has received many awards. He has entered four regional I.S.S.M.A. contests. He has made state I.S.S.M.A. three years in a row. With high expectations, Koopmans said, "My dream is to someday be a principal horn of a major orchestra."

Senior Sydney Szozda was notorious at LC for her remarkable art work. She joined art class sophomore year. She had also been a member of art club. She had been drawing since she was little. "My parents used to give me assignments to see what I was capable of doing. I chose to take art class to improve my skill. It's something I enjoy doing."

Szozda entered her works in various art shows. As school neared closing, she was working on a mural to paint in the hallways of LC. She had also made her talent very profitable. She drew portraits as a temporary job.

For the past four years, Szozda had entered in the Tri-County Art Show. Some of her work was displayed in the Secondary School Showcase at the Brauer Museum of Art. She also entered the Scholastic Art Show in South Bend.

This past year Szozda received a gold key. With winning that high honor, her work was sent to New York to a national competition. Her art has also gone to showcases at Navy Pier, the Contemporary Museum of Art, Terra Museum of Art, and the Art Institute of Chicago.

She remembered a fun time when she and her friends traveled to an art showcase. "We took a road trip to South Bend. We got lost and somehow ended up in Michigan."

Ceramics

Students show creativity through clay

Molding clay into creative artwork was not the only thing that was learned in ceramics classes this year. This elective also focused on allowing students to think like artists. Students kept journals to monitor their progress and to formulate ideas for each project. All four levels of ceramic classes kept busy this year by hand crafting their unique designs.

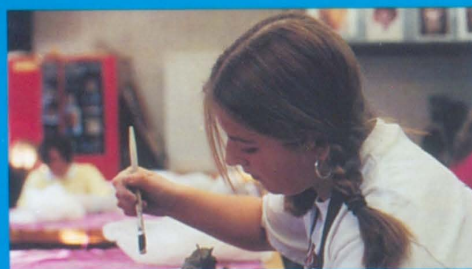

Ceramics I introduced the basics to novice students. The students learned to use the wheelthrow and how to sculpt and build pots with coils. "I feel that ceramics was a good class to take to express my creative side in a different way," said Caitlin Lawes, senior. The students also utilized their own ideas for surface decorations and glazes.

Taking the next step to Ceramics II led students into a more personal approach to their artwork. Since they were more advanced, they could create sculptures distinctive of their own imagination and creativity. "The second level of ceramics is more about concentrating on the students' own style," said Ms. Gray, the ceramics instructor. These students learned new techniques and developed ideas on how to incorporate nature in their sculptures.

Ceramics III and IV were more involved than the previous courses. Students learned the elements and principles of design. For this level of classes, keeping journals was vital for students to make several skillful choices about constructing their artwork. "I feel that my artistic ability has improved with taking this class," said Melissa Spurlock, senior. The students' projects were also entered into competitions, and overall the artwork did well in these competitions. The students' hard work and inventiveness helped motivate them to a fun and artistic year.

Alex Michalski, junior, molds her clay before she begins wheel throwing.

Faith O'Brian, senior, smooths the coils inside of her project.

A.J. Morales, senior, works with his clay before he starts wheel throwing.

Junior Jenny Klemme adds texture to her coil pot.

Lisa Evans, junior, constructs creativity to her animal whistle.

Ms. Maureen Yeager helps students with their art projects.

Seniors Beth Harsany and Ketti Boller have some fun working away at their drawings.

Art Is Fun, Painting Is Pleasure

A shower of color splashed onto a blank canvas and a masterpiece began. Art classes this year served as an outlet of emotions for many students eager to get away from the more intellectual aspects of school and grow closer to their artistic side. LC artists took basic elements to create unique and professional works of art. Most students embarked upon their high school artistic career by taking Art I. They learned the basic principles of art and about famous artists and art history. Inspirational teachers, Mr. Paul Volk, Ms. Maureen Yaeger, and Ms. Sandy Bushong sparked the creativity of students. The spirit of the artist transformed the lifeless page into something of interest and beauty.

Having learned the basic concepts of art, students enthusiastically went onto to Art II, III, and IV. Each new level of art brought new mediums and new knowledge about the history of art. Ms. Bushong explained, "As the students progress in art levels we hope they expand in thinking processes as well as in skill level."

Both the advanced students and the novices brought home pride to Lake Central. Awards were given to many Indian artists this year. At the Regional Scholastic Art Show, Sydney Szozda won the gold key, which allowed her artwork to go to a show in New York. A win there would send it on to Washington D.C. where it could win the opportunity of spending the summer in a museum. Not only was Szozda a big winner but other LC artists also brought home six medals and a total of eight awards altogether.

Classes in Crafts and Jewelry, and 3-D Art were also offered. They allowed students to make unique projects using materials like wood and metal. Students enjoyed making useful creations as well as decorative ones.

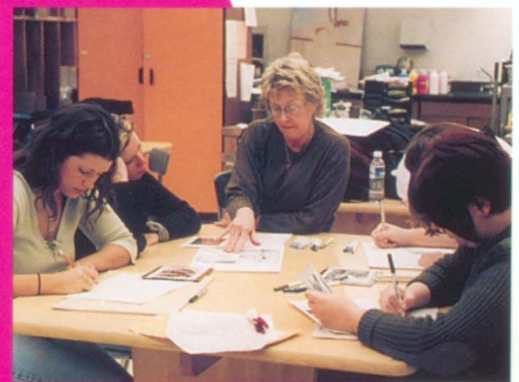

All the art students brought satisfaction to their school, community, and themselves by not only making art but also bringing it to life.

So much influence on so many students

LC brought everything students wanted and needed into the palms of their hands. Students who wanted to learn were encompassed with information that teachers had to offer, and they gained the knowledge necessary to progress into college. The future wasn't too far ahead, so the teachers prepared students for what was to come.

Mr. Smith stands up at the chalk board while teaching his German III students how to fluently speak the language.

The LC teachers were always willing to lend a helping hand with homework or questions on worksheets. They did their best to prepare their students for tests and the dreaded final exams. They knew that "book smarts" wasn't the only prerequisite for success; they taught students that they needed to be responsible and able to think on their own. They introduced new ideas, people, and ways of thinking. Their only problem being from 7:15 to 2:09, students could only soak up so much.

While sitting in SRT, students often wondered "how much longer until I can get to softball practice." Interact meetings, art club parties, and practicing for a big volleyball tournament kept students around LC by choice, but retaking tests and detentions after school had students staying far away.

Anything a student wanted to know was accessible through the faculty. Caring and personal teachers who made learning enjoyable created a bond with their students.

LC faculty--who could ask for more?

Mr. Bryan Skaggs prepares notes for his morning classes.

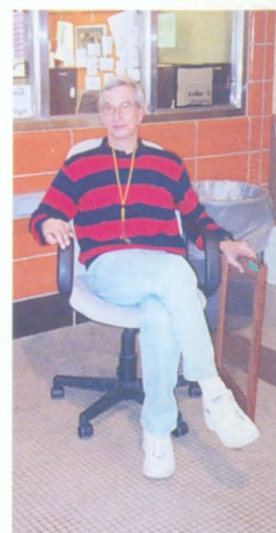

Mr. Ralph Holden lectures his psychology students about the human mind.

Mr. Rudy Skorupa discusses the last physics assignment with students.

Teachers. Whether you liked them or they tended to get on your nerves, they were an integral part of life at LC. The faculty began yet another year along with the student body: a year that promised good times, good experiences, and imparting a good education on unsuspecting students everywhere. The vast majority of LC teachers was excited about sharing their knowledge with high school students. These were the good teachers, and they were in abundance at LC. They were the teachers that make learning about geometric figures fun, that spiced up Spanish class, that made biology bearable.

They came to school every morning with smiles on their faces (usually) and put up with the rowdy students while silently thanking demure students. However, the faculty was not only composed of teachers but also the administrators who made trips to the administration building during SRT tolerable. The security staff made our school a safe place, and the lunch ladies seemed to always be in a good mood.

Although often overlooked, these were the people who made this school work along with the teachers. When defining the word faculty, many people only regard teachers as such. However, there were many pieces to this puzzle. Comprised of many parts, the faculty at LC made our school a better place to learn, to chill with friends, and to have the time of our lives. And with a faculty like LC's, who could ask for anything more?

Custodial and Cafeteria

Imagine it is a cold day in the middle of the winter. The night before there was a light snowfall that has begun to melt and has left an icy slush on the ground. As you get off the bus or out of your car, you notice that the sidewalk around the school has already been shoveled and salted. By the front doors, a pile of dirty snow from the people's shoes begins to accumulate and make a slippery mess. Later in the day, you feel your stomach growl as you are standing on the other side of the line hands you some food without asking for a thank-you. At the end of the day as you head out the same doors you came in through, you notice that the mess that was there earlier in the day was cleaned up without any reward other than a meager pay check.

Those people were the custodial and cafeteria members of the staff. They were some of the most under appreciated and least respected adults in the school. They were some of the first ones here in the morning to open the school for everybody, and they were some of the last ones to leave.

Eric Stark (10) said, "The custodial staff should be appreciated more for what they do during the entire school year."

People also prepared food for everybody and served it, but were considered responsible for everything that was wrong with the food.

Many people did not understand the stress it took for the cafeteria workers have to make the meals every day. They, along with the custodial staff, deserve more respect than they received.

They believe in miracles

All teachers had an experience with a student that touched their hearts. These heart-warming people were willing to forego higher-paying jobs for classroom satisfaction. Sometimes teachers were not given the respect or recognition they deserved. Teaching offered one of the toughest jobs in the world, but the roles could reverse, with students giving a teacher a valuable lesson. "I once had a homebound student who just had her baby. Her boyfriend basically abandoned her; both her parents were in prison. But she was working, raising a child, and going to school. Three years later I ran across her and she was about to graduate from college with a Paralegal Degree. That proved ANYONE can learn and achieve!" Mr. Alan Angel, science teacher, revealed.

"A former student returned and told me how a short story we read in class had changed his life by making him less prejudiced. He was a student who I thought was not paying attention and had no real interest in school. It changed my perspective on all my students," Mr. Ron Fredrick shared.

Teachers sometimes felt that they don't impact their students' lives, then learned the opposite. "I thought one student hated my class. It turned out she was just quiet and loved the class. She said she would remember that special year. It was a wonderful surprise!" Ms. Pam Fields, drama, said.

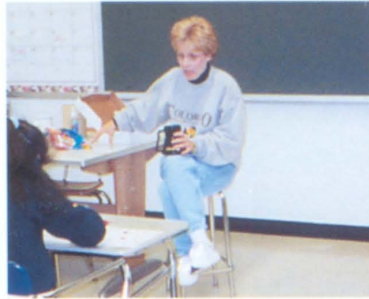

"I helped a student overcome the death of a parent and suicidal intentions. The student went on to college and is very successful!" said Ms. Laura Zeller, IIS instructor.

Teachers were normal, and like us, there were times when it took just one student to change their perspective on education. "I think working with students every day, seeing them complete labs, sewing projects, learning something new is why I became a teacher. I try to touch the lives of each student that passes through my door. I take an interest in them every day!" said Ms. Chris Bruns, family and consumer science.

Ms. Selund goes over one of her last English exercises of her teaching career.

Mr. Svetanoff explains the medieval period to his fifth-hour class.

The end of the school year came up quicker than what anyone could have imagined. For most of us, it was just the end of another school year, but for four teachers, their days were few before a new phase of their lives began--retirement. Ms. Shirley Hewlett, Ms. Beverly Rhyneanson, Ms. Carole Selund, and Mr. Dave Vignocchi closed their gradebooks and headed onto a new path.

"I am looking forward to retirement and it will be an adventure," stated Ms. Rhyneanson. After 26 years of teaching and dedication at LC, Ms. Rhyneanson decided to pack her suitcase and travel before taking a permanent vacation under the palm trees in Florida.

"Ms. Rhyneanson is one of the classiest people I know," said Ms. Pat Maman. "She was very professional with the teachers as well as her students."

"Ms. Selund is one of the most dedicated and organized teachers I know," said Ms. Maman. For an outstanding teaching career, Ms. Selund received the crystal apple. "I really did not expect that. I have always considered myself average," confessed Ms. Selund.

Having an amusing sense of humor, Ms. Selund added life to meetings and helped brighten students and teachers alike. Ms. Selund was president and a negotiator for LC's teachers Association, a chairperson and coordinator of the North Central Accreditation committees. "Ms. Selund will not only be missed for her excellence in the classroom, but for her excellence in leadership and committee work," contributed Ms. Karen Fideli.

Over the past decades, things have changed quite a bit. "Since I have been here, we have a new approach to teaching and adapted a new way of teaching," said Mr. Vignocchi.

"It is a sad thing since there's been such a long history between us," admitted Ms. Judy Seehausen about his retirement. Mr. Vignocchi worked closely with Ms. Seehausen over the past years, since they were on LC Teacher Association teams together.

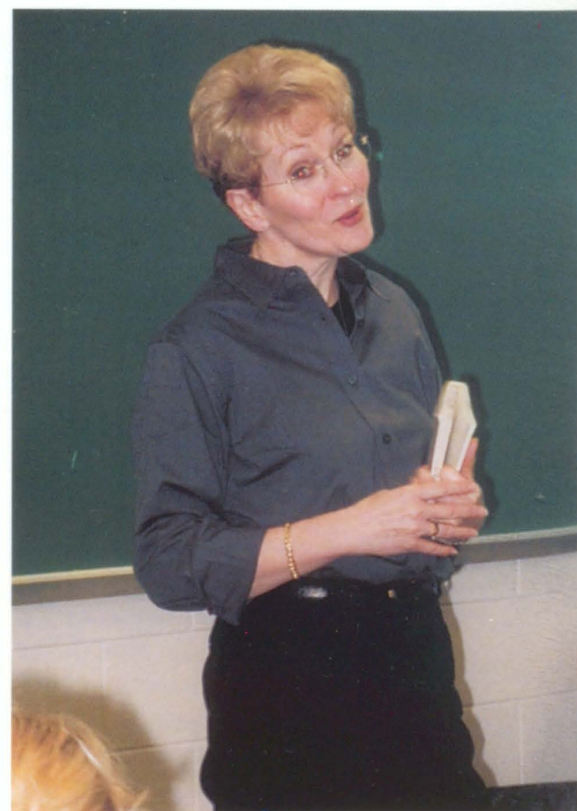

"Regardless of what people say about Mr. Vignocchi, I've always found him to be a compassionate, knowledgeable and helpful teacher," said Mr. Wayne Svetanoff. "Mr. Vignocchi was a pleasure to work with and it will be a great loss to the English Department."

Bringing attention to LC with the first all color yearbook, Ms. Hewlett has left behind something that LC will cherish for years to come. Ms. Hewlett, too, served fellow teachers with offices in the LCTA and earlier negotiations team work.

With all of the hours it takes to publish a full-color yearbook and meeting deadlines, "She really loves what she is doing," said Ms. Rhyneanson.

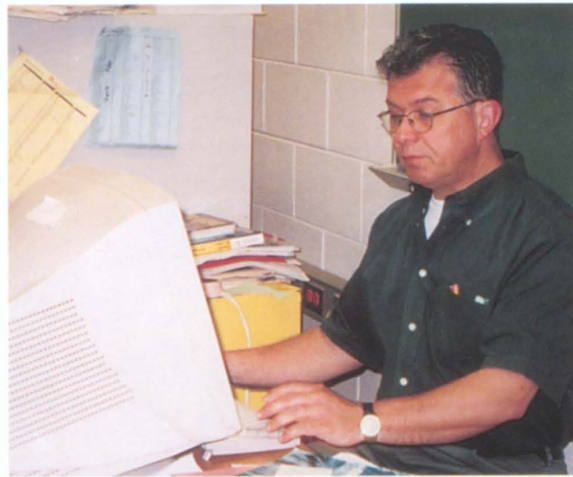

"Ms. Hewlett is truly dedicated to her students," Ms. Laurel Bankroff.

"Ms. Hewlett is definitely a teacher I will remember later in life. She has made journalism even more interesting and exciting and I'm glad I had the opportunity to work with her on the first all color yearbook," said Denise Kolanczyk (11).

Ms. Toni Radio uses enthusiasm while discussing a novel. Radio organized the English Department get-together for retiring teachers.

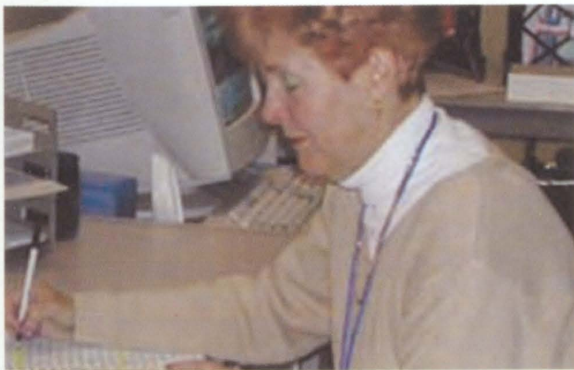

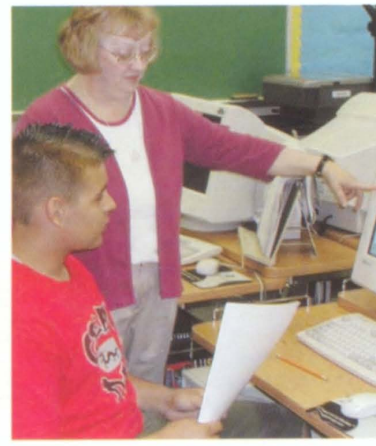

Working on his computer, Mr. Starewicz anticipates working at LC with changing faces.

Ms. Donaldson could look forward to checking future notecards on term papers.

3,000 different Faces equals one common goal

In spite of the diversity of LC students, we had one thing in common; we were all part of LC and its people. LC brought out our individuality, and whether or not we were ready, we grew up. Each student grew into a new, more mature person. As freshmen, we clung to the people around us and even assimilated ourselves into those we admired. With each passing year, we learned the significance of being unique, and we no longer wanted to be like everyone else. As seniors, we prepared ourselves to walk out into the world with new ideas and anticipation to succeed in our advanced society.

As young adults, it was our job to determine who we wanted to be and the people we wanted to be around. These people became our friends. Some only lasted for a short time, while others would last for a lifetime. However, each of these people played prominent roles in creating who we are today. We had friends that we only talked to in our classes, yet, they seemed to know our deepest secrets. It was impossible to talk to everyone, but recognizable faces gave us a feeling of comfort that we would have to learn to let go of.

Their influences affected our opinions on life, school, and our futures. This vast bond of people released an aura that made LC our home.

CLASS OF 2005

Class of 2005

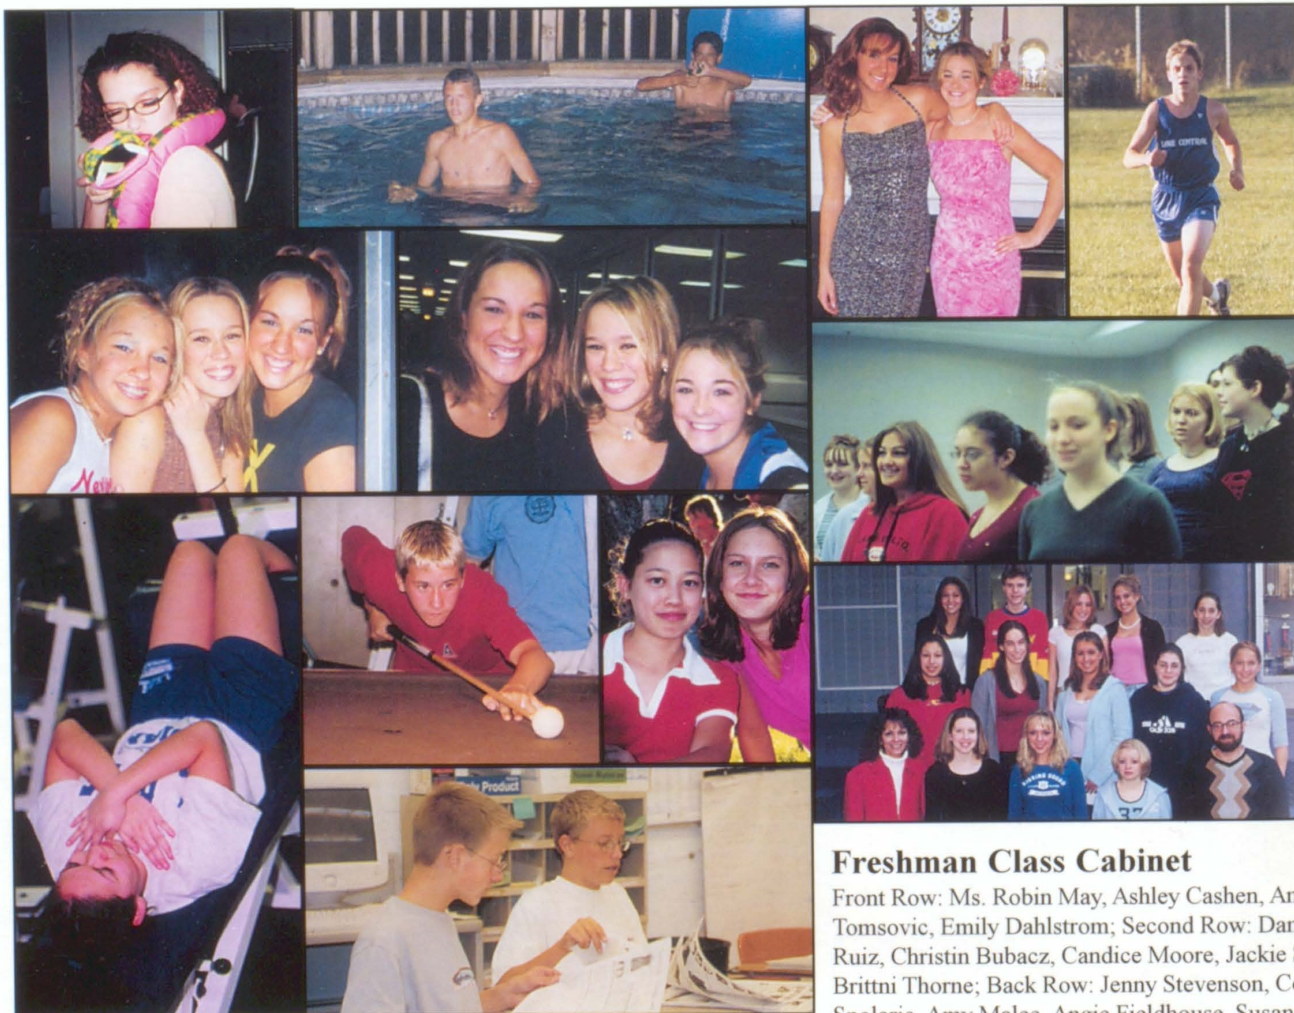

Looking at the door to the high school, you wanted to turn away and go back to a middle school where you knew everyone's name, where everything was already laid out for you. The reality that those times were over was scary. Moving forward into a new life was one of the hardest things we went through. Still, it had to be done.

The year started new and different. You're given new responsibilities from parents and friends. Old friends, WHOm you had known almost your whole life, change before your eyes to fit a certain image that everyone wanted. Teachers were difficult and not what you were used to. The classrooms and halls were superior. You found that the rumors about freshmen being shoved in lockers and thrown in garbage cans weren't true. However, maybe it COULD happen when you least expected it? Starting to adjust, you sat back and let things go into play.

After Homecoming flew by you thought this year could actually be fun. And with all the parties, dances, and friends you made, the year got better with each day. You ASKed yourself if what everyone said was right: high school is what you make of it. And in order FOR making it amusing, you needed have a lot fun, and do at least some schoolwork along the way.

You counted down the days until you were not going to be called "little freshman" or ANYTHING like that. Next year, you'll have new authority. This whole year turned out to be MORE than expected.

How did you meet your Best Friend?

"My best friend,
Nikki, and I were in the same class
in first grade."
Chelsea
Beauregard

"Emily and I met
when we were little tots, when we were in our diapers."
Julie Gerlach

"I met Lauren in third grade on a field trip to the zoo." Cari
Kimberling

"Brent and I have been best friends since we were in the same class
in preschool."
Aaron Buchler

"In sixth grade Tom and I were in the same band class"
Kathryn Golden

"In kindergarten, we had a Thanksgiving feast, and I was an Indian, and Kristy was a pilgrim."
Allison Dunbar

"Fifteen years ago I moved from Trenton,
MI, to Dyer, and Nick Staresinich lived a few houses down. Our parents became friends
so we played together."

Our Most Memorable Moment

As Best Friends

Is...

Amazing

Lauren Lucko and Cari Kimberling
"One time we walked up to K-Mart and we got separated in the store. So Cari goes up to the customer service counter and asked the lady working to page me on the intercom asking "Will Lauren Lucko please report to the front of the store? Your mommy is waiting for you."

Andrea Cohen and Katie Mis
"We were starving and we ordered a pizza. When the pizza guy came we started racing towards the door. When we got to the door, we tripped over each other and fell on our faces. He was really cute too so it was extremely embarrassing."

Val Trembacki and Megan Rendina:
 "We went to the Mall of America a few years ago and saw some guys in really tight pants. We were making comments about them and when we turned around they were standing right behind us. They heard every word that we said. The guys looked at us really weird and walked away. We still laugh about it to this day!"

Kim Skiff and Trisha Grooms:
 "We were in a dance recital together when we were younger. We did two person cartwheels for about half of it."

Mike Bohn and Nick Staresinich:
 "We both were at Disney world when we were 7 years old. We wondered away from our parents and got lost. We had to ask Mickey Mouse for directions to the tea cup ride because that's where our parents were."

Mary Imbrone and friends

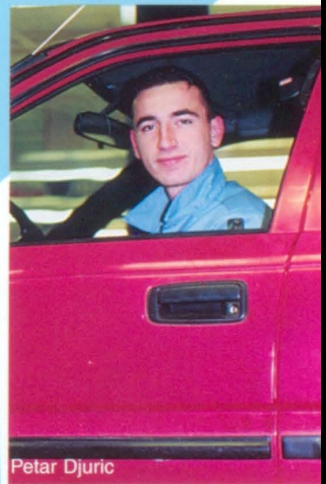

When the year finished, we thought back to those first days of junior year, when we secretly drove to school without a pass and were able to finally attend prom. We envied the seniors that graduated and dreamed when our time would come.

Our heads were filled with memories that will always stay with us. Even though some may not have been as good as the others, they stick out in our mind. Friends have come and gone through out the past three years, but the close ones are always at your side. Together, the tough times and stress seemed to be absent in our minds. You knew that no matter what happened the next year, together you would get through it.

As May approached, reality hit, and we soon began to realize that this was the time of our life.

Who could ask for anything more? Besides some heat on a cold February day or a slightly wider E-hall, high school life at LC was quite an experience. The memories we walked away with will forever remain pages of our scrapbooks and pieces of our hearts. As seniors, it was time to bid our farewell and let go of the friends we had grown ever so close to in only four years.

The lives we created in high school molded our futures and provided us with opportunities we had only dreamed of since elementary school. The decisions we made took us to different corners of the state and even the country for our education that lie ahead. For many of us, high school was an endless barrage of homework, projects, and papers, but we couldn't overlook the hours of laughter with friends and numerous sporting events, concerts, and parties. Through the hardships we prevailed, and through the championships we celebrated until we reached the culmination of four of the best years of our lives.

Never did we once think the great times of being a high school student were going to end. To some graduation was too far and yet to others it was right around the corner. But for all, the time finally came to close the lockers and take that last final exam. We had been through the best and worst of times together and were about to see our classmates, teammates, and most importantly our friends for one last time. The day had come for the 2002 curtain call, and we were undoubtedly apprehensive to leave such a secure lifestyle and wander into the realm of the "real world." But we, as a strong and determined class, knew when our turn was up, and so we stepped forward, progressed our lives, and made the best of who we were.

As we take one last stroll down C-hall, some of us can't help but glance over our shoulders to see the shadows of friends and hear the echoes of laughter. The past four years were loneliness and love, sorrow and joy, failure and success. They were simplicity and innocence. High school was our lives, the lives we loved, and we couldn't ask for anything more.

SENIORS 2002 R S

Class Motto:

As each of us follows our path in life, we will remember these years. We will remember our friends, the laughter, and the pain. Our smiles reflect the memories locked deep within our hearts. Future dreams shine like bright stars against distant nights. We have grown so much, and yet, we will grow forever.

Senior Plans

The big question we had been asked all of our lives finally had to be answered: "What are you going to be when you grow up?" We had to make the decision of staying at home where we knew everyone and our surroundings or leaving and starting over in a new place.

Deciding what our majors were going to be was the most difficult choice. Would we be happy with our decisions or would we change our minds once we knew exactly what our majors were about? We knew that the decisions we made would be with us for the rest of our lives. Good Luck!

Seniors Go Hollywood

One Last Chance To Party Together

April 26 was no ordinary day to seniors; it was extra difficult to pay attention in class and plans were being made too far in advance for it to be any old night. As David Bowie, Elton John, Cheech and Chong, and the Blues Brothers entered the Halls of St. George in Schererville, it was obvious tonight was Senior Banquet. This Hollywood-style banquet started with a buffet dinner of chicken, mostaccioli, mashed potatoes, green beans, fruit, and rolls. Vanilla and chocolate cake was served immediately afterwards for dessert.

After dinner class officers Beth Harsany, Ashley Hayhurst, Rachel Zarnecki, and Mandy Hackman presented humorous class awards. The same traditional awards such as best physique, best eyes, best hair, most likely to marry, and many others were presented. There were also some new awards this year such as most likely to be a towny, the next Barbara Walters and Tom Brokaw, most likely to appear on TRL, and one in a million.

Next came the time everyone looked forward to the most; more than dinner, more than the awards: the last chance for everyone to dance together. The DJ from Entertainment Express started off the night with "Music" by Madonna. Seniors took this time to reminisce over the past four years, reconcile the now insignificant past arguments, but most of all bond together and share the last dance. Tonight everyone danced together no matter who you were. Laughter was shared and pictures were taken with best friends and those who were just your acquaintances earlier that day. The night came to an emotional end all too soon with Vitamin C's "Graduation Song" as all the seniors came together as one in a circle around the dance floor hugging and crying together for one last time. Tonight we put our college plans aside as we lived for the moment and our last chance to cherish the past and move towards the future as one.

Class of 2002

Ed Bloom, Amy Zandy, and Carlo Santori share a senior moment together. Seniors feel banquet is the best part of the year because just the seniors are together.

Dan Cardinez perfects his break dancing skills as his Senior Class watches. Cardinez also won the award for best dancer.

Andrew Kiernan and Kristen Detmar bust a move on the dance floor. Banquet is a time when seniors can let loose and relax.

Neil Weir dresses up as Pee-wee Herman for the banquet. He also impressed everyone with his skills as he got on stage and did the Pee-wee dance.

Elton John aka Nate Lawson and David Bowie aka Bruce Fane came dressed as their favorite Hollywood celebrity.

Semester graduates, Sarah Hayes, Brette Book and friends came back to join everyone for banquet. Since semester grads graduate in January, banquet gives them a chance to come back to see old friends.

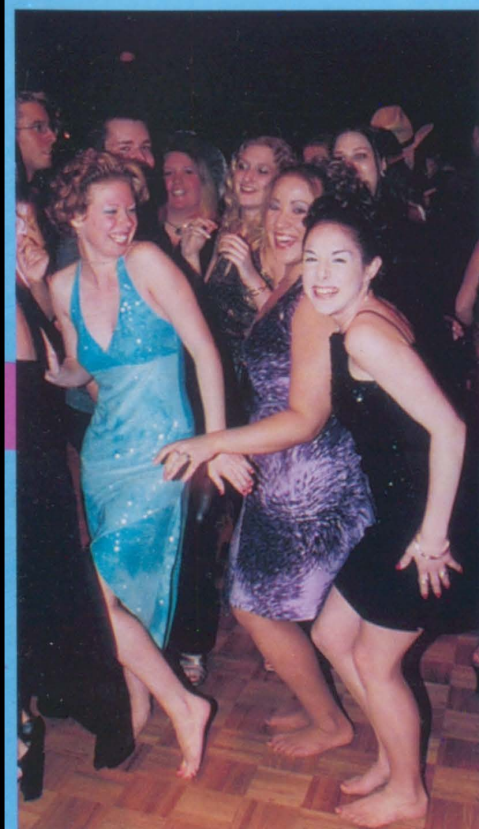

Jimmy Graham, Adam Huebner, and friends came dressed up as either a Hollywood character or with crazy attire. "I thought it would be fun to dress in crazy clothes," said Huebner.

Val Oseguera, and friends gather before banquet to capture the moment. Senior Banquet is one of the last times all seniors will be together before they graduate.

Rachel Barenie, Jillian Lessard, and friends dress alike with matching boas. "Since we didn't have anyone to come as, we decided to match with boas," said Barenie.

Staci Halupniczak and Ashley Geideman were late to the banquet because Ashley couldn't get ready on time. They took pictures by themselves; Ashley said "Sorry."

Amiee Hayhurst and Taylor Garrison prove their dancing skills. Friends could be seen dancing the night away together, making memories that would last forever.

Desi Davila, Samantha Singler, and Samantha Neijman do a Charlie's Angels pose before leaving for banquet. Many students come in groups of friends to make sure they will have a blast.

Class Cabinet officers prepare themselves to announce the senior awards. During the year students vote for who they want to see win and wait in anticipation on who will win

Counterpoint members, Dan VillaSenior and Eric Creasbaum, watch the ceremony intently. They anxiously wait to sing their song, "For Just A Little While."

Salutatorian, Jamey Eckstein entertains the audience with his remake of Adam Sandler's "Hanukkah." With Jamey's LC incorporations, he received a standing ovation.

Andrea LaBanco and Ashley Geideman laugh and applaud at Jamey Eckstein's salutatorian address. The girls were filled with tears of laughter. Becky Nelson smiles as she receives her diploma from Board Member Howard Marshall. It was an honor to receive our diplomas from the board.

The counterpoints wrote a song that the seniors could reflect upon their high school years. Amanda Hackman, Eric Creasbaum, Nicole Garza, and Bill Donovan perform "For Just A Little Whlie."

Megan Ralston gives the thumbs up as waits for her name to be called.

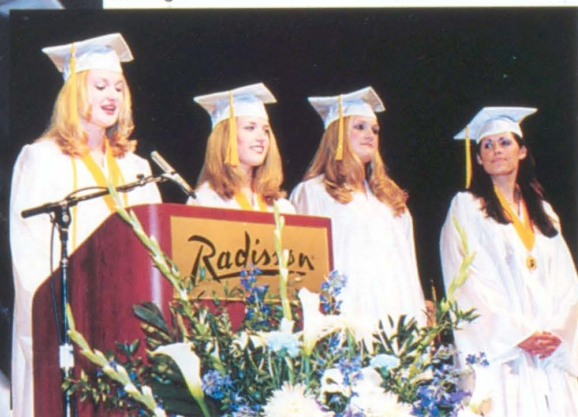

Valedictorian, Gwen Hochman, gives her address to the graduating class. She inspired us with a quote from Henry David Thoreau.

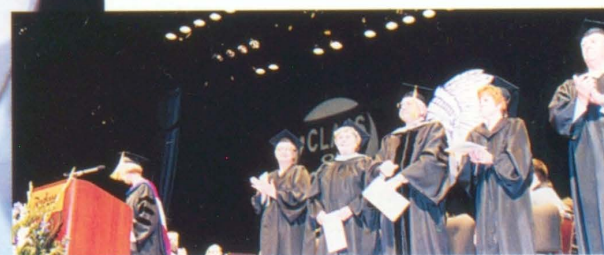

Class President Beth Harsany hands a carnation to graduate Erica Anderson. All graduates received a flower when they walked off the stage.

Class Cabinet officers present the class gift. We donated two thousand dollars to the Make A Wish Foundation, and over four thousand dollars total.

Justin Mitchell and Matt Frost congratulate each other on their accomplishments and discuss where the party is afterward.

Board members applaud Superintendent Janet Emerick as she finishes her speech about life's fortune.

Graduation Goodbyes

Hard work pays off in the end

Finally, after four years of hard work and determination, the day seniors have looked forward to since freshman year was here... graduation.

As students arrived at the Radisson Star Plaza around 6:15, there were camera flashes and an array of blue and white gowns. Friends gathered together to take pictures to remember the day they had waited so long for. They day they could finally say they are finished with high school and are moving on.

The ceremony started with salutatorian, Jamey Eckstein singing and playing his guitar to a remake of Adam Sandler's Hanukah Song. He reworked it to add memories from our four years together. He sang about sports, teachers, and Senior Banquet. At the end he received a standing ovation. Valedictorian, Gwen Hockman also gave a heart warming speech. Class cabinet members presented the class gift, one thousand dollars to plant trees in front of the school to beautify it, two thousand dollars to the Make A Wish Foundation, and other amounts to miscellaneous foundations.

The counterpoints graced the stage by singing "For Just A Little While." Principal Sandra Platt gave a top ten list of how to know your graduation would be a success. Dr. Janet Emerick gave an introduction and then began the presentation of diplomas.

When the last name was called and the flip of the tassel was complete, there was a sigh of excitement and fear. Excitement because we were done with high school, and the fear because we couldn't know what the future holds. Now college was fresh in our minds. We then had to start all over again as freshmen. That dreaded name given to us once more, however, this time the meaning would be a little different. College would be a whole new experience. One that will be the start of adulthood.

As the graduates filed out of the Star, there was that last grab for a photo with the newly graduated Class of 2002. Emotional goodbyes were heard from all around. Not knowing the next time we would see each other, maybe at a graduation party or not until the ten year reunion. We did it! We finally graduated! Congratulations Class of 2002! Much success in the future.

Brandon Trtan waves to the audience as he walks across the stage. We are sure he made his parents proud.

I Could not ask anything more from LC because...

"It gave me a lot of opportunities to improve my athletic ability,"
Eric Mickolajczak
(9)

"The friendships I've made in the last few years,"
Sophia DeLeon
(11)

"There is nothing more to ask for," Erik Hooper (12)

"I graduated and they got me out of here," Bob Mellas (12).

Senior choir members
Connie Gadbois and Heather Foltz perform at school during the Spring Concert.

Jeremy Lawson set up a light for the Valentine's
This was the club's first year doing portrait projects.

Sam Wanger (12) and friends wait for their limo before Winter Formal.

Seniors Stacie Pluskota and friend get down at Senior Banquet. Banquet is a time for seniors to share last memories together.

Juniors in United States History Honors classes dressed up in outfits from their favorite decade, which they did a project on.

Students decorate Ms. Carrie Wadycki's classroom at Christmas time. Every year classrooms get judged to see who decorates theirs the best.

Sisters Rachel and Stacy Barenie embrace each other at school. Many students have siblings that attend school with them.

Senior Hollie Norris throws her hands up at Senior Banquet. Majority of the night was spent dancing with friends.

Centralette Jillian Lessard performs at the Lake Central Invitational. Centralettes went on to win Nationals in Florida.

Chris Ogden and date get messy after formal with saucy ribs. Many students go downtown to eat after formal.

Seniors Nick Kruse and Chris Kuhn play catch between a cross-country meet. Many friends come to watch their friends run in their meets.

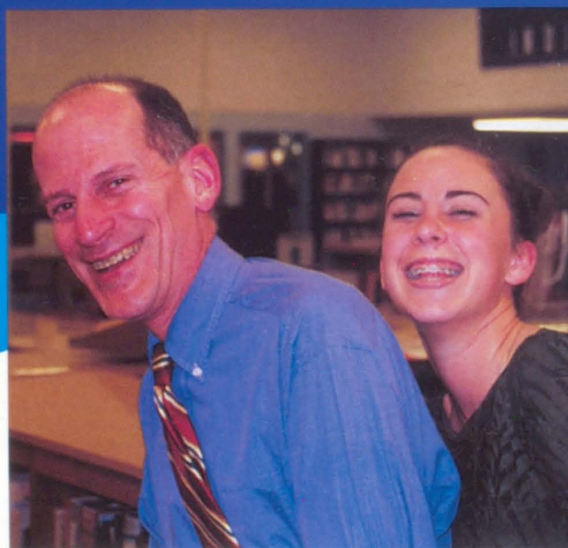

The crowd filled with active students await the announcement of their Homecoming court.

Senior varsity hockey player Ron Skiff is proudly displayed by teammate after a victorious win on the ice.

Amy Zandy and friends want to bid you a final senior farewell. Good luck to all underclassmen; enjoy your time at LC.

Fellow LC swimmers encourage their teammates as they compete in one of the season's toughest competitions.

Junior Erin Wesley shares one last memorable moment with Mr. Vignocchi. As one of this year's retirees, Mr. Vignocchi will be greatly missed by all students and faculty.

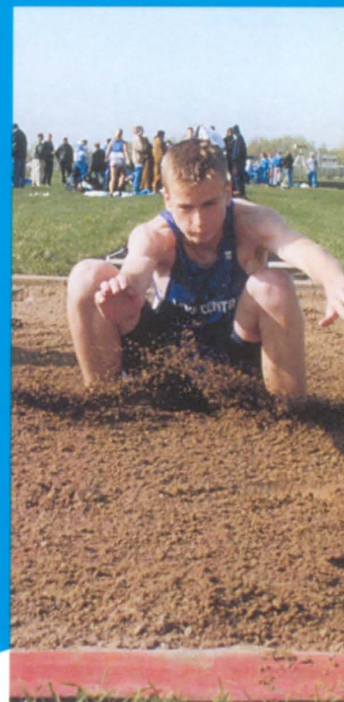

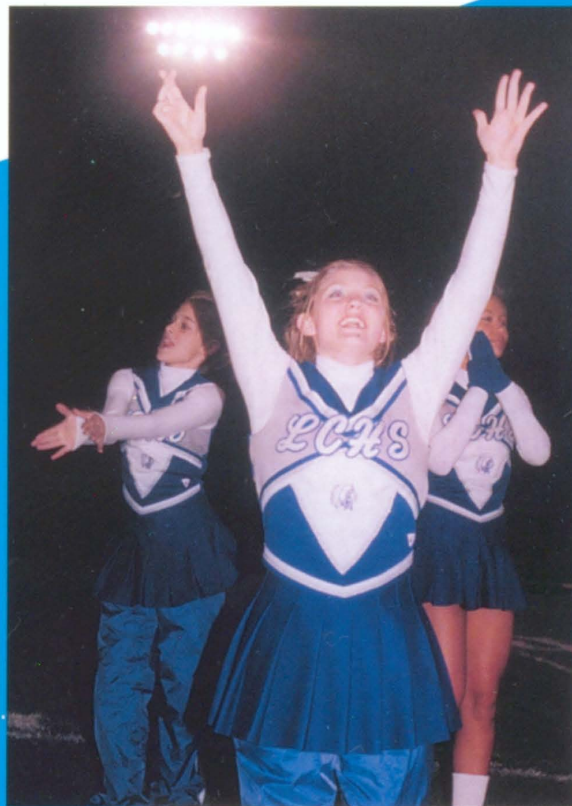

Senior Brandon Trtan and Chris Ogden listen carefully as Coach Freckelton assigns a new game plan.

Junior Varsity Cheerleader chants at the roaring crowd eager to keep them interested in the game. Cheerleading coach Joan Loden teaches her girls 100 percent crowd participation.

Senior Varsity Basketball player Peter Dunbar knows the definition of pressure. He must make both free throws to keep LC in the lead.

ASK YOURSELF ONE THING...

WHO would believe that the school year was over? Everyone COULD remember the first day of school, when freshmen walked in trembling wondering where to go, and they were too afraid to ASK anyone for help. Seniors arrived right as the bell rang and strolled to class.

The memories of the year flowed through our heads. Laughing with friends, cheering at sports events, or searching FOR the perfect date, were on the top of our minds. These memories could never be erased or forgotten.

Many questions arose as the year came to a close. What would we do?, Where would we go?, and Is ANYTHING going to be the same? The MORE we thought about these questions, the less we really wanted to know the answers. In the end the main question in our minds was...

WHO COULD ASK FOR ANYTHING MORE?

What Banking
Should Be.

Legacy.

At Centier, old-fashioned values are a priority to us...like family, friendship, trust and legacy. We are a family-owned business, always have been and promise to remain that way. We are committed to the communities we serve and value our relationships. We thank you for your trust and we promise to respect that. We look forward to helping you pass on these simple values to the next generation.

Proudly Honors the Winners of the 2001-2002 Michael Furman Mental Attitude Award and Bill McCormick Memorial Award

The Michael Furman Mental Attitude Award for boys and the Bill McCormick Memorial Award for girls are awarded each year to the students in the Lake Central Youth Basketball High School Divisions who best exemplify the highest standard of mental attitude to peers, team, and the league.

The award is not for the highest scorer, but rather the person who is willing to sacrifice his/her own personal statistics so others may excel. This person epitomizes unselfish play and never quits. He or she is the team member who will find a way to elevate the team above the rest in morals and ethics. This person is the one who hustles until the last ounce of energy is spent. He/she is beyond approach in fairness, shows a great respect for the game itself, and always cheers the team on. Above all, this person is complimentary to all, while at the same time keeping the spirit of competition and exuding the joy of the sport.

The boys award honors Michael Furman, a life-long LCYB player who tragically died in a car accident. The girls award honors Bill McCormick, who devoted many years of service as the league's president and was a strong advocate of the girls league.

Lake Central Youth Basketball offers instructional basketball leagues for grades 2-12 in Schererville, St. John, and Dyer.

Remembering Ms. Hewlett during her 24 years...

Once in a while we have moments that are so good and seem so perfect that we could not ask for anything more. It seems the more time that passes, the more we realize what a person has accomplished in a career. It seems they could not be happier, and it is time to leave everything as it is.

After 24 years here at LC, Ms. Shirley Hewlett decided that she had accomplished enough that she could not ask for anything more. Bringing LC to the center of attention with the first all-color yearbook, Ms. Hewlett has left behind something that LC will cherish for years to come.

Life does not become much better than achieving a career-long goal, publishing the first all-color high school yearbook. "It has been a goal of mine ever since we started adding color to the yearbooks, and I wanted LC to be the first," Ms. Hewlett said.

With all of the hours it takes to publish a yearbook, let alone in full-color, plus meeting deadlines, "She really loves what she is doing," said Ms. Beverly Rhyneanson.

"Ms. Hewlett is truly dedicated to her students," stated Ms. Laurel Bankroff. She was always ready to help students, and since Ms. Hewlett was out-spoken, you knew exactly where you stood with her.

Life was perfect. We had a teacher who always accomplished more and went farther than what was expected. Ms. Hewlett was a lot of fun, but she still knew how to get the job done. "I really liked being in her classes, and I will miss her when she is gone," acknowledged Allison Dunbar (10).

Ms. Hewlett was one of those teachers that we will never forget. No matter what was going on, she made sure we knew what had to be done and added that extra burst of flavor that we needed after hours of work. We knew we had it all but did not fully realize how good we had it. "Ms. Hewlett is definitely a teacher I will remember later in life. She has made journalism even more interesting and exciting, and I'm glad I had the opportunity to work with her on the first all-color yearbook," said Denise Kolanczyk (11).

What Ms. Hewlett accomplished for LC is priceless, but the influence she had on students and teachers alike is something that will last for a lifetime. We could not have asked for anything more so Boop-oop-a-doop!

Corinn,

Everyone is so proud of you; with your smiling face you have touched many lives. From 14 years of Girl Scouts, Special Olympics, School, to Job's Daughters, you have many friends and family that have taken you under their wings, along with many angels on your shoulder. You are a very special person and there are many roads for you to travel in your life, and we wish you happiness on all of your journeys.

Trips to get icecream
on hot summer days

Students watched the second hand tick down on the last day of school, excited about all the memories they would make this summer. Many were destined for tropical getaways while others were stuck in the tri-town area flipping burgers. Some unfortunate souls spent the majority of their summer in summer school, especially the soon-to-be freshmen who wanted to get the dreaded pool class out of the way. Regardless of where they spent their summer, most were happy that they were not at LC. Incoming seniors were busy making college preparations, while the upcoming sophomores were just excited about the fact that they were now upperclassmen. Students found a variety of ways to keep themselves occupied in the hot summer heat, from cruising down Hart Street to splashing around the dunes. Others

The end of March was approaching and anticipation was rising for Spring Break. For those of us who were leaving the tri-town area, excitement grew for warmer weather. Like most Spring Breaks, it started off with snow and ended with snow. Most of the students were left behind to face the boredoms of their living room couches. Those who left for break and were returning had to re-adjust to the harsh reality of Indiana weather. Welcome home!

Europe Trip

Apprehension filled our hearts as we left the high school parking lot, in a few hours we would be on our way to Europe. We were truly in for it...trading in orange pop for Fanta, tap for seltzer water, chicken for schnitzel, and all meals came equipped with ice cream! Although alone time came few and far between while traveling with fifty people, this trip allowed everyone to grow as a group and individually. We went on adventures through the Underground Tubes in London, strolled the cobblestone streets of Prague, and watched the sunset in the Alps. We began to value the small things in life as the trip progressed. Many events taught us how to survive in foreign worlds. We could sleep just about anywhere but be careful when sleeping near glass water bottles. Doing just about anything in a train car was possible from gymnastics to laundry. Mrs. Ranich got us fired up to board the train in under 2 minutes, or so it seemed. Dan taught us how to pick up some extra cash just by falling asleep in front of Mother Theresa's Place. Money exchange became a cinch, and we picked up the city transportation just after a few mistakes. A wise man told us that "This is not a Disco" but the Music Club sure proved otherwise. Being shot into the air in a metal ball could be safe, as the carnies at Pratter Park taught us. Although we stuck out like sore thumbs in a European world, we began to blend into the surroundings. As much as we did not want to go home, it was time. We realized that a part of us stayed in Europe because those places we truly loved, we never left.

High school was so much for everyone, but without the friends to share the memories with, it would have been nothing. We tailgated at football games together, danced all night at

FANS

Pulling into the LC parking lot, all that could be seen was a sea of blue and white. Fans got to the games as early as two hours before game time to tail gate, make posters, and paint their faces. These diehard fans were also the first ones that could be seen occupying the front rows of the bleachers no matter what season it was. The loyal fans cheered their hearts and voices out for their fellow classmates giving them the support and recognition they deserved. Whether the price was waking up with a hoarse voice or being sick from cheering while the rain drenched their clothes, these fans were what bound the ties of athletes and students with school spirit.

Colophon

Hey you guys! This has been the most stressful--yet fun--job of our high school careers. Knowing that we were the ones making history with our all-color yearbook was enough to get us really rolling and on the ball. We started off the year with about 70 staff members, three editors, and our one and only, Mrs. Hewlett. With all the new ideas we the editors came up with at yearbook camp, we knew this would be a one-of-a-kind book. We only hoped that our staff would feel the same dedication and satisfaction once it was printed. We can remember all the times when we played the name game, threw pencils across our cubicals, held exhalted warrior pose, and watched our staff fall backward down the stairs while sitting in the desk at the computer.

Thank you to so many of our photographers, Drew, Jenny, and Twiggy. Zack and Jeremy, not only were your pictures awesome, but you gave us all the laughs that we'll never forget.

To our writers, we thank you for meeting your deadlines. Kim and Liz, thank you for your dedication.

Lisa Keene, you made our day when we saw you walk in our door with three dozen donuts. Thank you for helping us with any problem or question we had. What would we do without you? Good luck in years to come.

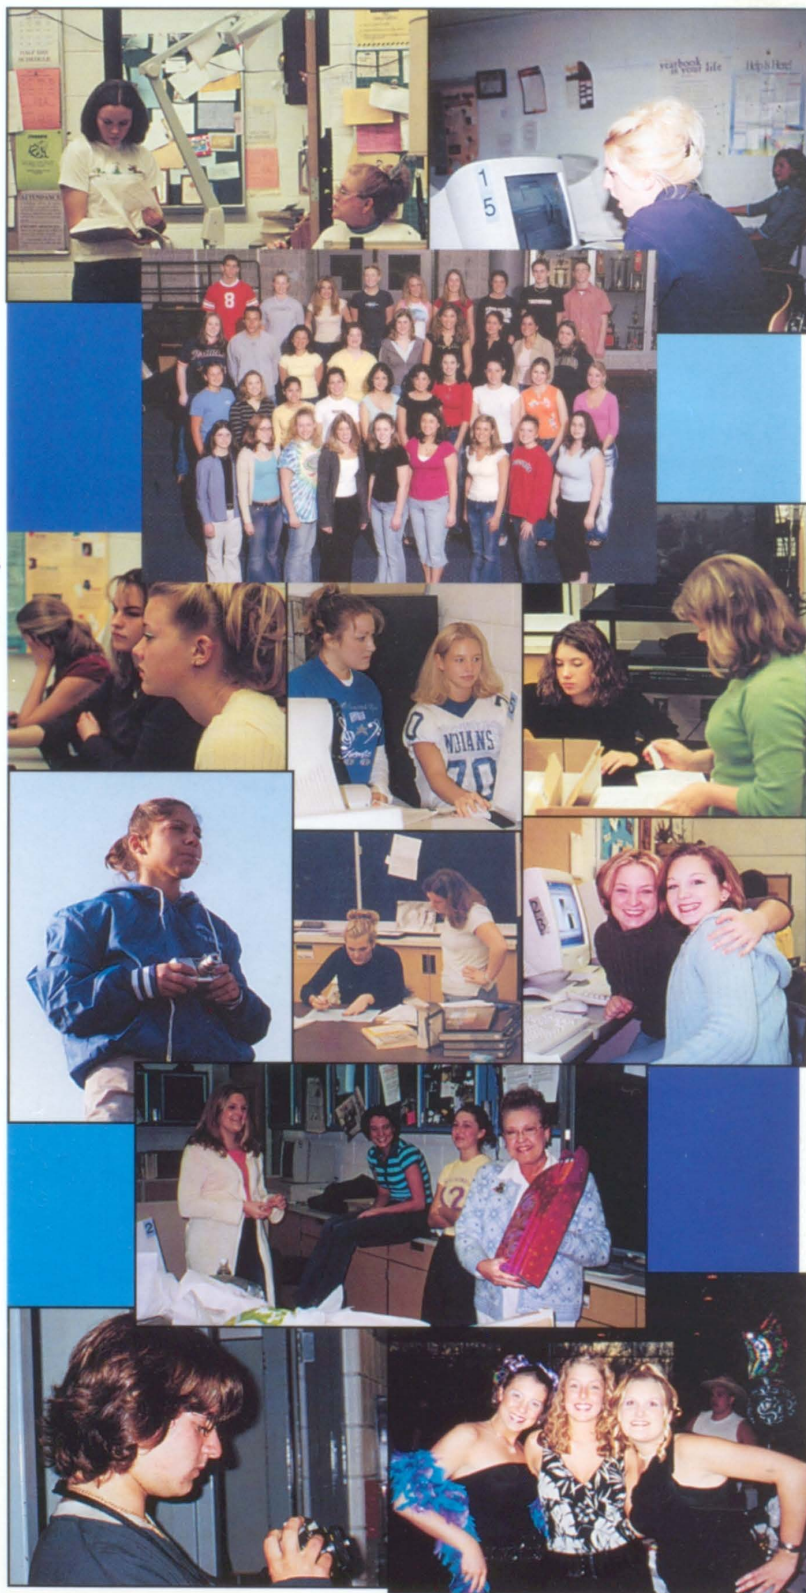

Thank you to our awesome business department. Jackie, Melissa, and Jenny, you guys did a great job keeping up with all the orders!

Mrs. Hewlett, we wish you all the happiness you may find in retirement. Try a few yoga classes maybe. You will be greatly missed by your editors and all of LC.

A special good luck to the upcoming adviser, Sarah Drolen. We are sure you will be successful and really enjoy the LC students; we're a great bunch.

To the future editors, you have a big job on your hands. Be fair, be honest, and have fun at camp. If you understand your staff, you'll be fine. Just remember, "I don't quit at yearbook, but I quit at stupid games."

Your tri-editors,
